NATIVE BANK GUILD MEETS EACH DAY TO FIX INTEREST

Financiers Gather At Headquarters In Ningpo Road

VERY EFFECTIVE

Rates Vary According To Strength Of Demand

BY DAVID ARAKIE

How is interest calculated by native banks in China? This question at first sight might appear very simple, but it is doubtful whether the system is generally understood. It is peculiar, in its method of deduction, to the Western custom in many respects. In Shanghai, for instance, native interest each day, quoted in terms of a thousand taels per diem, is regulated and established by the Native Bankers' Guild whose headquarters are in Ningpo Road. Here at about nine o'clock in the morning and at two in the afternoon this body of native bankers meets in order to deliberat and decide on what should be the official rate.

In a large market like Shanghai, where there is no institution like the Old Lady of Threadneedle Street or the Federal Reserve Bank or the Reichbank that controls the rate of interest in the respective spheres, the modus operandi o rriving at the rate of native interest is certainly the most effective. It is the only barometer we have in Shanghai, and as a matter of that in the whole of China, of the supply and demand of money.

CLOSE RELATION

It is also the most accurate because of the constant fluctuations in the official rates, which alteration can only be the result of the ebb and flow in the demand. Hence these rates when they register such frequent changes cannot but be regarded as an accurate reflexion of the conditions ruling.

It is obvious, therefore, that fundamentally there is a relatively close connection between changes in the native rates of interest and the volume of money offering. Native interest affects, for better or worse exchange rates for forward months When money is easy the near and forward rates are almost identical.

If the demand for funds is insistent the rate is increased in proportion to the supply offering. The quotations vary from day to day and often twice a day, during the period when money is largely in demand. The method of the native bankers' guild is indeed complicated. Whereas the practice among Western Banks in large cities is to be guided by the Government and leading banks in the periodical changes according to the ebb and flow of trade and the demand for money, the alterations in China are as frequent as the manifestoes issued by the Peking Government Like many other Chinese systems the native method of calculating interest is a veritable puzzle. The "daily" quotations of native interest, which are constantly fluctuating, are certainly no guide as to the monthly or annual rate of interest charged by the Banks on overdrafts or allowed customers on their deposits lodged with these institutions.

PLAN PURSUED

The plan pursued in arriving at an official rate for the month is on these lines. The two daily quotations are added for the whole month, and an average taken by the directors of the Native Bankers' Guild on the third of the following month, when the question of fixing an officially-governed rate for the past month comes up for decision at this meeting. Should the average for the month work out at eight per cent, for example, the Guild, in establishing what depositors should receive on their deposits or what borrowers have to pay in the way of interest to their bankers, is governed principally by the state of the money market at the time, taking the average as the medium of criterion.

In a normal period three to five percent more than the monthly average of rates is charged to borrowers, while the current depositors are credited with the average of the monthly rates, less five percent discount on the official rate. It would be recognised that there is no method of arriving at these figures, the whole thing being left to the discretion of the governors of the native banking group, whose de-

No Bandits Near Tsingtau Resident Says In Letter; 90 Bad Characters Shot

Deny Major Garibaldi Was Kidnaped; Police Force Declared Efficient As Under Japanese

Tsingtau, reports to the contrary notwithstanding, is entirely free of the bandit menace and drastic steps are being taken by the local authorities to eliminate all danger of lawlessness there, according to word received by THE CHINA PRESS yesterday from a British resident of the Northern city.

Reports that a foreign resident, of Tientsin, Major M. Garibaldi, was captured by bandits near the resort city on June 12 are emphatically denied and the letter further states that the Chinese police have rounded up and executed nearly a hundred loafers and suspicious characters and nave insured peace and quiet in Tsingtau for a long time to come.

In connection with the Garibaldi incident the letter states that the true facts are as follows:

"Mr. Garibaldi took a contract from the Japanese Military Authorities last year to build roads; he let the work out to contractors and when the work was completed he paid his contractors and it seems one of the contractors did not pay his men in full and they came to demand payment from Mr. Garibaldi, which of course he refused. They met him in the street and demanded payment. Mr. Garibaldi not wanting to have trouble with these coolies returned to the hotel and the hotel manager telephoned the police to come and see these coolies. The Police came and interviewed Mr. Garibaldi and the coolies. He then asked Mr. Garibaldi to come to the Police Station to make a complaint and identify the coolies. Mr. Garibaldi later went and was accompanied by one of the hotel staff, and after two hours the hotel employee returned to the hotel and said the police were questioning and detaining Mr. Garibaldi. The Hotel Manager at once notified the British Consul who sent his Chinese interpreter to find out what was the matter and the American Consul also telephoned to know why Mr. Garibaldi was detained. The Inspector said that they were keeping him there for his own safety while they were arresting the coolies. The American Consul replied to let him go immediately, which the Police did then and there.

"Mr. Garibaldi considered that he had been illegally detained for two hours and telegraphed to his Consul in Tientsin to send a man down with his receipts to show that he had paid his contractors. They did as requested and the representative is here now. There was also a complaint made to the Japanese Consul and he very promptly took the matter up and the coolies were all lodged in jail."

The statement in a Northern paper that many of the Tsingtau police are ex-bandits is indignantly denied by this foreign resident, who declares the present force to be all well-trained men, many of them from Peking where they were drilled and taught under foreign supervision. The writer condemns a campaign of propaganda work which he states has been in progress during the past few months against the Chinese in Tsingtau and says he can vouch for the fact that the Chinese officials are doing everything possible to make their administration a success and that the port is as safe and pleasant for the foreigner as any in China. The police protection he states is better than under the Japanese regime.

In conclusion he gives the following account of the activities of the police as a terrific preventive to lawlessness in the Shantung port, these activities having been accelerated since the Lincheng episode:

"One night after the Lincheng affair all the police and detectives made a raid on all the logding houses and disreputable resorts in the city and rounded up over 100 men. They were all tried and 90 of them were shot in public. I went to see some of the executions and they had a very good effect, as every tough who was not arrested skipped the city and the Inspector informs me that there is not a bandit within 100 miles of Tsingtau. Stories of bandit outrages near here have been greatly exaggerated, by reason of propaganda, work by some interested parties during the past six months. It is a shame, for the Chinese are doing very well.

"Tsingtau is as safe and as well kept now as it was under Japanese administration."

MOVIE DIRECTORS ESCAPE DROWNING IN FILMING SCENE

Picture To Be Shown Tomorrow In Aid Of American Relief Fund

Harry Rapf and Wallace Worsley, producer and director respectively, narrowly escaped drowning in the San Luis River, Delmar, Cal., during the filming of the latest Wesley Barry picture, "Rags to Riches," which will be shown at the Isis Theater on Wednesday, June 20 as the headliner of a program in aid of destitute American civilians. The American Association is conducting the show.

Rapf and Worsley were walking along a railroad trestle looking for a suitable spot to film scenes for the Barry picture. Cameramen and members of the cast had been left on the opposite side of the river, when, suddenly, Rapf and Worsley heard the whistle of the train. To save themselves from mutilation they both jumped sixty feet into a whirlpool.

The members of the cast immediately threw ropes to the frantic pair and within a short time they were hauled safely to shore. This incident proved so thrilling to Rapf and Worsley that they decided to inject its realism into the picture. As a consequence Wes Barry and Niles Welch were ordered to go through the same experience.

When another train finally passed by Barry and Welch hung on for dear life on the edge of the trestle, with the result that Barry's strength gave way and he plunged headlong into the whirlpool, with Welch closely following him. Welch is a good swimmer and Barry proved to be a "babe" in his hands.

"Rags to Riches" is said to give Barry the best screen story he has yet had to throw his audience into gales of laughter by the unusual escapades he gets himself into. Other members of the cast, in addition to Welch, include Ruth Renick, Russell Simpson. Minna D. Redman, Richard Tucker, Eulalie Jensen and Jane Keckley. The story was written by Walter De Leon and William Nigh.

Manila Also Has Bandit Outbreak

Exclusive Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS

Manila, June 18.—A number of armed bandits broke into the quarters of General Douglas McArthur in the Walled City last night in an attempt to rob the General's home during his absence.

Sergeant McLean, who was sleeping in the house as caretaker, was slightly stunned when he was struck on the head with a revolver during his sleep, but pulled his automatic revolver and fired eleven shots at the bandits in the room.

As his revolver spit into the darkness the bandits jumped through an open window, landing in an old moat that runs around the walls, and escaped. It is thought that one of the bandits was wounded. During their hasty departure the bandits dropped practically all of the loot they had secured including a silver framed photograph of General Pershing, and another of Mrs. McArthur.

General McArthur is returning to Manila on June 26.

London Foreign Office Asked To Take Action

KEEP TRADE GOING

Want Routes Kept Free Of Bandits And Irregulars

(Reuter's service)

London, June 17.—The Federation of British Industries in the course of representations to the Foreign Office in regard to the growing disorganisation of China urge that drastic action is imperatively necessary to protect (illegible) trade interests, both Chinese and foreign.

The first step must be to secure the main trade routes from interference by bandits, rebels or irresponsible local authorities. The Federation suggest that special gendarmerie might be instituted under the orders of the Central Chinese Government, trained and commanded by competent foreign officers.

The Federation say that the British Brush Manufacturers' Association reports that, owing to the famine in Chinese bristles due to decreased production following the unsettled conditions in China, prices have almost doubled recently.

QUEZON LAUNCHES NEW ATTACK ON U. S. GOVERNMENT

Wants Legislature To Shape Policies Of Islands

Exclusive Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS

Manila, June 18.—Manuel Quezon, speaking at Negros yesterday on the political stumping tour he is making of the Islands, made the traditional attack on American administration of the islands.

"It is absurd," he said, "that Washington or its representative should absolutely control purely local affairs, especially financial and economic matters. If Governor-General Wood, by virtue of his executive power, closes the National Bank, now needed in the development of commerce and industry, the legislature will open another bank.

"If law means anything the legislature is not a political plaything and it should make the policies that are to govern the country."

Washington Crews Beat Wisconsin

Exclusive Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS

Madison, Wis. June 18.—The University of Washington varsity and freshman crews today defeated the University of Wisconsin crews over a two and a half mile course on Lake Mendota.

The Badgers made a desperate effort in the last half mile of the varsity race but were not quite able to catch the Western crew.

Bombay, June 17.—Mr. Venkatapatirauu has given notice of a motion in the Legislative Assembly that steps should be taken to impress the British Colonial Office that, if Indians in Crown Colonies are denied British citizenship rights and equality of treatment, the Indian Government will be compelled to take retaliatory measures and suspend further emigration of assisted labor to any British Colony whatsoever.

Paris, June 17.—In the match between Morelle and Siki, in which the latter was disqualified, the titles of neither of the contestants were involved, Siki having failed to weigh in before the match.

Sun Mei-Yao, The Chief Of The Bandits

The quiet looking gentleman dressed in a long white gown with his arm thrown over Mr. Lee Solomon's shoulder in such friendly fashion is none other than Sun Mei-yao, the chief of the bandits, who becomes a Brigadier-General in the Chinese Army under the agreement that was signed for the release of the captives. The man with the mustache next to Solomon is Sun's secretary, a returned student from Japan.

The photograph is an enlargement of a vest-pocket picture snapped by Mr. J. B. Powell on a camera that was smuggled in to Solomon by THE CHINA PRESS correspondent at Tsao Chuang. The bandits objected to having photographs made at first but when this picture was taken—in front of the house where all the negotiations were carried on in the chief's village three li from Pao Tzu Ku—they were anxious to appear friendly and wanted their pictures taken.

MASS MEETING CALLED LOCALLY IS SUPPRESSED

Military Governor Halts Political Gathering Set For Yesterday

The mass meeting called yesterday to oppose the appointment of Tsao Kun as the next president and to adopt other resolutions dealing with the Peking political situation was suppressed by order of General Ho Feng-lin, Military Governor of Sunkiang and Shanghai, who contended that martial law is still in force in Chinese territory and any meeting of a political nature should not take place.

In deference to the order, Police Superintendent Hsu Kuo-liang had a detachment of gendarmes at the scene of the proposed meeting at the Nantao Drill Compound long before the hour set for the affair and the early comers were politely told that the meeting was off. At 2 o'clock, when the meeting was supposed to commence, about three hundred had congregated, but without any of the leaders who had called the meeting. Only ten organisations were represented instead of a hundred.

A representative of the Anhui Labor Union managed to get a hearing by ascending the door steps of the Ta Lung Rice Shop. He took occasion to score George Hsu Chien, prime mover of the meeting who failed to appear, allegedly on account of threatened violence because he was accused by several organisations as a Feng Yu-hsiang agent in Shanghai.

Wang was followed by Miss Chi Chien-hsia, principal of the Ching Yi Normal School, but before Miss Chu had finished her address, the crowd had dispersed.

Baldwin Fears For West Europe

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 17.—In a speech at a dinner given last night by the Rhodes Scholarship Trust at Oxford, Mr. Stanley Baldwin said that the civilisation of West Europe was cracking.

The whole world was consciously or unconsciously looking for salvation to the British Empire and the United States.

If there was building up to do in the world, it was the English-speaking peoples in the long run who would have to do it but the task would require the courage of a Pitt and the faith of a Lincoln.

REPORT TROOPS TO BE BLAMED FOR OUTRAGE

Joint Commission Ends Investigation—Captives To Thank All Who Helped

(China Press Service)

Peking, June 17.—In connection with the Lincheng outrage, the joint commission of foreign consuls and Chinese officials has completed its investigation into the causes of the outbreak.

The British and American Consuls at Tsinan, the American Attache, Messrs. Wen Ping-chung, Sun Fung-tsao, Chau Wu-tung, Tsin Ming-po and Feng Kao-hsun, delegates of the Chinese Government, arrived at Tsinan from Tsaochuang last evening. They held a conference with Tuchun Tien Chung-yu and Civil Governor Hsiung Feng-chi today and left for Peking the same evening.

It is reported that the Commission fixes the responsibility for the Lincheng outrage on the government troops.

A report from Tsaochuang states that the Chinese captives are still held at Paotsuku, the bandits demanding the sum of $100,000 for their ransom. The report adds that six local gentry of Tinghsien, who went to the bandit lair as mediators, have also been detained by the desperadoes.

(China Press Service)

Hankow, June 17.—The report is confirmed of the capture of Father Malotto, an Italian priest, by the bandits at Yingcheng. Latest reports state that Father Malotto is held to ransom at Panchachih, three miles from Yingcheng.

Tuchun Hsiao Yao-nan has dispatched a detachment of troops to Yingcheng for the rescue of Father Malotto and other captives.

The bandits made another raid on Pinglinsi, near Yingshan, last night. A number of houses were pillaged and burnt. Over 100 natives were carried off by the bandits.

Captives Will Thank All Who Helped

Shanghai men who were captives of the Paotzuku bandits will send letters of thanks to the various organisations and officials instrumental in securing their release within the next few days according to information secured last night.

The ex-captives held a meeting at the home of Commander G. D. Musso the day before yesterday, it was learned, at which they took up the question of the thanks they owed to the various organisations and individuals of the city who were responsible for their good treatment during the time they were captive and also for their release. GIANT CUNARDER LISTED TO MAKE ROUND GLOBE TRIP

American Express Co. Charters Franconia For Second World Tour

The gratifying success of the first world tour, made last year by the giant liner Laconia, the American Express Company announces that a second trip round the globe will be undertaken this Autumn, the new 20,000-ton Cunarder Franconia sailing from New York on November 15.

In making the announcement the American Express Company takes occasion to remark upon the triumph of the Laconia cruise, expressing particular gratification for the satisfaction indicated by the big crowd which made the first trip. The prospect for the 1923-1924 tour, the company declares, is that it will surpass in every particular even the bright record of last year. Except for some additional points of interest, the itinerary is to be substantially the same as for the Laconia, the promoters holding that the success of the previous cruise has proved the wisdom of the Westward sailing and arrangement of the program, which calls for visitors to the various countries at the best season of the year. A November sailing over a route including Havana and the Panama Canal insures escape from winter bleakness, running into warm waters and sunshine two days out of New York. The ship will reach California at the height of the best season there, December, and will call at Hilo and Honolulu about the middle of the month. Various alternative overland tours have been arranged for the trippers on their arrival in Japan and, the Franconia is expected to make Shanghai on January 8.

Following are some of the ports of call for the trip: Havana, Colon, Panama, San Francisco, Hilo, Honolulu, Yokohama, Kobe, Hirohima, Shanghai, Hongkong, Manila, Batavia, Singapore, Rangoon (Hastings), Calcutta, Colombo, Bombay, Port Sudan, Cairo (Port Tewfik), Alexandria, Naples, Monaco, Gibraltar.

The management is the same as for the previous world tour, the Travel Department of the American Express Company, which will be supported by the staffs of American Express offices in fifteen cities en route.

It is expected that the Franconia will put back into New York harbor about March 27, 1924, having travelled 28,224 miles on the trip.

Peking, June 17.—With a view to deliberating upon the situation as well as diplomatic affairs, a citizens' meeting was held today outside of the Tien An Men Gate but was dispersed by the intervention by the armed police.

Peking, June 17.—Notwithstanding Sunday today, the Ministry of Finance attended to its official duties as usual and paid to military guards 40 percent in cash and 30 percent in special treasury notes of the arrears of their wages and to other quarters at the rate of 20 percent in cash and 30 percent in treasury notes. In view of the fact, however, that the Ministry has not paid any amount to the Kuowuyuan, the latter is, it is reported, strongly negotiating with Mr. Chang Ting-wo, Vice-Minister of Finance, for the payment of its expenses.

(China Press Service)

Peking, June 17.—Government circles declare that President Li Yuan-hung is planning to effect an Anfu-Fengtien coalition against the Chihli faction with a view to wreaking vengeance for the abrupt termination of his office in Peking.

Much significance is being attached to a report from Tientsin that President Li is in daily conference with the emissaries of General Chang Tso-lin of Mukden, General Lu Yung-hsiang of Chekiang and Doctor Sun Yat-sen of the South-west.

It is feared that the present political crisis may shortly precipitate a clash between the rival factions.

Up to the present, General Wu Pei-fu remains non-committal with regard to the political muddle. It is reported that the Loyang potentate is watching the action of General Feng Yu-hsiang in the Capital with an acute sense of jealousy. It is regarded as highly probable however, that General Wu will not openly oppose the coup d'etat against President Li, because of the necessity for the preservation of the unity of the Chihli faction.

(China Press Service)

Peking, June 17.—General Tsao Kun has repeatedly telegraphed to Dr. Wellington Koo, exhorting him to accept the portfolio of Foreign Affairs, to which he was appointed some time ago by President Li Yuan-hung. Dr. Koo has refused.

It is reported that General Tsao is anxious to enlist the support of Dr. Koo, because, he hopes, the latter's popularity in Legation circles and his grandiloquence would induce the foreign diplomats to recognise him as President.

(China Press Service)

day decided to stand aloof with regard to the political crisis confronting the Chinese Government, pending further developments in the situation. The recent despatch of the Waichiaopu announcing the resignation of President Li Yuan-hung and the assumption of the Chief Executive's duties by the Cabinet will not be replied to at present.

According to a report emanating from Legation circles, the Diplomatic Corps will not address any formal notes to the Waichiaopu, until a government worthy of recognition of the Powers has been formed.

Keen disappointment is felt in Legation circles over the undue action of General Feng Yu-hsiang, Inspector-General of National Troops, better known as the Christian General, in coercing President Li Yuan-hung into flight.

(China Press Service)

Peking, June 17.—The secretaries and other departmental officers of the Cabinet declared a general strike today as a protest against the long accumulation of the arrears of their salaries.

The strikers have locked up and sealed all omces of the Kuowuyuan. They threaten dire consequences to any officer, who shall resume work without waiting for a settlement under the terms. d by the "Kuowuyuan Strikers' Union."

As all available funds have been appropriated by order of General Tsao Kun for bribing the legislators, the authorities concerned have been unable to comply with the demand of the Cabinet strikers for immediate payment. The situation is very grave.

Native Bankers Fix Interest Rate

cision is final and binding on all the native banks. In other words, when the monthly average of native interest is some eight percent, the current depositor obtains from his bank 7.6 per mille interest, while the borrower has to pay 11 to 13 per mille for the accommodation.

There are only a few months when the rate of native interest is pitched high. These are before the Chinese New Year, the Dragon and the Mid-Autumn Festivals. Also before the opening of the cocoon season, when it is but natural that native interest should begin to strengthen and travel on the upward incline.

The cardinal rules governing the fixing of native rates of interest are these: The monthly average of interest must be to the current depositor at least two percent, and to the borrower a minimum of 4½ per mille, in addition to which the borrower also has to pay from 3 to 5 per mille, making a total of 7½ to 9½ per mille on monthly advances. The highest rate for the day cannot exceed 70 candereens, working out to 25 percent per annum. The daily interest rate therefore varies between two to 70 candereens per Tls 1,000 per day, according to the conditions of the money market. In normal times it fluctuates between 20 to 30 candereens, which means 6 to 9 per mille per month or roughly 7 to 11 percent per annum.

At The Del Monte

Having regard, doubtless, for the sweltering throngs who attended the races or the ball games yesterday, Manager Al Israel announces a timely program for this week's entertainment at the Del Monte.

"Bathing Girls" are to constitute the main ballet number for the week. A dozen of these Summertime nymphs of the beach are involved in the marine number and according to Manager Al, the beach at Peitaiho, or Tsingtau, or Coronado or Atlantic City, or Brighton, or anywhere else never boasted a more pictorial or agile batch of bathers. You can almost hear the surf, says Al, and says he, "so far as this 'one dollar admission' phrase goes that seems to be becoming so popular here, Junt spell the first word backward and eliminate the 'e'."

Tsao Kun---The Dark Horse

Tsao Kun, Inspector-General of Shantung, Honan and Chihli, is the real power behind the present turmoil in Peking, which has already resulted in General Li's flight from the Presidential Palace.

Tsao Kun is also the man in whose district the bandits made their raid on the Tientsin-Pukow Express.

As 'the dark horse' in Chinese politics he is probably the most powerful personality in China, pulling strings and buying votes—all with the idea of becoming President himself.

Mr. Henry Morriss, prominent broker and owner and rider of the 'Field' ponies, was thrown in the big race of the day—the Century Cup—at Kiangwan yesterday afternoon and sustained a broken shoulder and injuries to his chest.

Big Aero Crashes In Peking Street

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 14.—Very little political news having transpired this afternoon the chief interest seems to have been transferred to the fall of an aeroplane. This excited many people by its low flight over various parts of the city and finally it crashed.

Details are somewhat conflicting but apparently the two pilots were both not very skilled and the machine came down through trying to avoid the American wireless station and fell to the westward. It crashed into a tree.

In addition to the two pilots there were nine mechanics on board who were all more or less injured. The two pilots are lying in the Peking Union Medical College in a critical condition and little hope is entertained of their recovery.

REPORT TROOPS TO BE BLAMED FOR OUTRAGE

finite announcement was made but it is said that the letters of thanks will be addressed to Mr. Roy Anderson, the negotiator who was most instrumental in securing their release; Commissioner for Foreign Affairs Wen Shih-tsen of Nanking, General Chen, who is still a hostage in the bandits' hands; the American Chamber of Commerce, the American Red Cross, Mr. Carl Crow and Mr. Robert McCann, who had charge of the relief work in sending supplies, and others who assisted in the work.

The meeting was held at the home of Commander Musso who is unable to get about as yet, as he is still suffering from his experiences and unable to walk without assistance.

FERRAJOLO RETURNS

Capt. R. Ferrajolo, Italian Vice-Consul, who has been at Tsao Chaung in the interests of Commander G. D. Musso, the only Italian subject captured since the Lincheng outrage, returned to Shanghai on Saturday.

Capt. Ferrajolo, since the release of the captives, has been working on the joint commission of foreign and Chinese officials which made an investigation of the outrage and has just completed its report.

American Consul John K. Davis went to Peking to make a personal report to American Minister Jacob Gould Schurman and is expected to return to Shanghai within a few days. British Consul General Tours has returned to Tsinanfu, his station.

Many Outrages On Yangtsze

The outcry at the Lincheng outrage has occasioned amongst foreign residents in Western China not a little astonishment, mingled with some slight amusement, in view of the repeated outrages on American steamers on the Upper Yangtsze during the past three years, of which no particular, and certainly no effective diplomatic notice was taken at the time, says a correspondent of the North China Daily Mail.

We remember only too well the occasion when the Robert Dollar steamer last year ran a gauntlet of fire for close on 28 miles and received over 300 shot holes in her hull and upper structure. We have never heard that much notice was taken of this incident and we have certainly reason to know that no reparation was ever exacted.

The str. Loongmow, the oldest of the large type of steamers on our run, has, I believe, been fired at on an average every third trip for close upon four years. Perhaps the American Government regarded the scandalous conditions on the Upper Yangtsze as merely normal since the British Government have been content to acquiesce so patiently.

Two recent incidents at the port of Wanhsien will serve to illustrate the impotence to which naval commanders have been reduced, by want of diplomatic support. The str. Meiren of the American West China Navigation Co. was held up by the natives of Wanhsien, her pilot kidnapped, and to enable the steamer to load, consent had to be given to an armed Chinese guard being stationed aboard. The spectacle was then witnessed of an American ship, flying the Stars and Stripes, in the charge of an armed Chinese guard while an American gunboat lay benevolently astern.

Shortly afterwards a British steamer arrived and on anchoring was boarded by a threatening rabble who displayed the greatest truculence and prevented, the steamer loading at all. The commander of the American gunboat, the only one in port, was appealed to, and the only assistance his orders permitted him to afford, was a promise that if the ship was set on fire by the mob he would take steps to rescue the foreign personnel.

Whatever the cause of these two incidents may have been, and it is known that they were caused by the resentment of the junkmasters at steamers loading wood-oil, it can hardly be good for foreign prestige to have foreign steamers unlawfully boarded under the very bows of foreign gunboats.

One of the first steamers to run to Suifu this season was fired upon below Luchow and received six direct hits. The only reply to remonstrances made was that steamers should cease running, otherwise the Chinese authorities would not hold themselves responsible. The same reply was made to remonstrances last year when similar incidents occurred.

We may well ask whether if the Diplomatic Body take this sort of answer lying down, they will be content to acquiesce if the Chinese Government request them to restrain their nationals from traveling on the Tientsin-Pukow railway until further notice!

In the circumstances the present astonishment of foreigners here can well be understood. They expect that the opportunity be seized by the Diplomatic Body to exact reparation for outrages in Szechuen.

New Zealand Seeks Market In Straits

(Reuter's Service)

Melbourne, May 19.—At a recent meeting of the Dominion Executive of the New Zealand Farmers' Union held in Wellington, a letter was received from the Registrar of Imports and Exports, Signapore, dealing with the possibilities of the sale of New Zealand produce there. The writer pointed out that there were no direct shipping facilities from New Zealand to the Straits Settlements, and if wholesale prices were the same in New Zealand as in Australia, and the goods had to be shipped via Australia, it was probable that the extra freight would render the business impossible.

Mr. C. J. Rumkin, a recent arrival from China, addressed the meeting, and expressed the view that Shanghai was the best port to which small trial shipments of tinned meat might be sent from New Zealand. He emphasised the importance of samples being first sent to different suitable ports.

'Y' CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN OCTOBER

Canton Selected For Ninth Meeting Of Association In China

The 9th National Convention of the Young Men's Christian Associations in China is scheduled to take place in Canton, October 16-21, 1923. Each previous convention has been an epoch making affair not only in the life of the Associations themselves but also in their relations to other Christian enterprises in China as well as to the country as a whole in its national life. The 8th Convention celebrating also the 25th anniversary of the Associations' work in China which was held in Tientsin in 1919 still stands out in the memory of all who attended and also in the minds of the Chinese people as the one outstanding unifying event of the times. It clearly showed that the Associations platform of work and organisation was one that all real patriots and lovers of China would work together on and that they were willing to do so.

The coming Convention bids fair to outdistance the previous ones along all lines. An aggressive Executive Committee of 15, with Dr. T. H. Lee of Futhan University, Shanghai as the Chairman and Mr. Y. C. Hu of Ningpo as the Secretary, ably supported by Dr. Herman C. Liu and others, is actively at work making the necessary arrangements. The theme of the Convention will be "China's Hope—Character" and in helping to realise this motto nine strong commissions, which have been appointed, will study the outstanding problems of the Association both in its internal work as well as in its outside relationships and will bring their findings to the Convention with recommendations for discussion and adoption.

FIRST IN SOUTH

The Committee, in selecting Canton, has been very wise in its choice. Never before has a Convention been held in the South and the assembling of 800 delegates from all parts of China in this vigorous and most up-to-date Chinese city will do much to give Chinese from interior cities an idea of what can be done to modernise and improve their own cities on their return. Second, the Y. M. C. A. equipment and program of work in Canton ranks as high as any in China and delegates will be able to see one of the very Associations in China in actual operation. The Building especially with its fine lobby, and games rooms, with class rooms and committee rooms above, its modern gymnasium and bath, its open air swimming pool and its auditorium separate from the other parts of the building is as good as any in the Far East and better than many places in America. Third, the climate in October is very delectable and one could not visit Canton at a more auspicious time.

Any one that has the opportunity to attend this Convention should consider himself very fortunate and no one should let such a chance pass by without seriously considering the question or for very good reasons.

Obituary

MRS. LUNA SOPHER

The funeral of the late Mrs. Luna Sopher, whose sudden death aboard the steamer President Pierce on June 9, while she was travelling to Hongkong, came as such a severe shock to her many friends here, will be held this afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Jewish Cemetery, Baikal Raod.

Mrs. Sopher, who was the widow of the late Mr. Marcus Aron Sopher, of the firm of S. D. David and Co., had long been held in high esteem by the Jewish community because of her charitable works and lovable personality. At the time of her death she was proceeding to Hongkong to join her daughters, Mrs. Edward Ezra and Miss Sopher. Mrs. Sopher's body was brought back to Shanghai from Hongkong on Sunday. Mrs. Ezra and Miss Sopher come from Hongkong to attend the funeral services.

Draft Of French Reply In Brussels

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 17.—It is reported from Brussels that the French draft reply to the British questionnaire has been submitted to the Belgian Government. It is couched in cordial terms and explains that by abandonment of passive resistance M. Poincare means that the German Government must order the State agents to discontinue the resistance and assist the administration. The French would on the cessation of resistance make the occupation "invisible" as when she first went to the Ruhr.

PHILIPPINES COLLECT LESS TAXES IN 1922

Internal Revenue Off More Than 2,000,000 Pesos

(Reuter Pacific Service)

Manila, June 6.—A drop of more than P.2,000,000 in collections of internal revenue and a falling off of 60 percent in income tax collections for the year 1922 are the outstanding features of the annual report of the collector of internal revenue for the year 1922, transmitted recently to the department of finance.

Total internal revenue collections in 1922 amounted to P.39,197,017.94, and the cost for making these collections amounted to P.457,031.53, being salaries and transportation for employees and officers.

Two sources of revenue have shown considerable decrease, says the collector's report; these are the percentage tax on merchants sales and the income tax. The increase in the consumption of articles subject to the percentage tax and the further decline in the prices of commodities account for the diminution of the collection of the tax on merchants' sales.

On the other hand, the marked falling off in income tax collections is explained by the fact that the tax was assessed and, collected on incomes realised in 1921, the year when the passing economic depression reached its peak.

(Reuter's Service)

New York, June 17.—The banking house of Knauth, Nachod and Kuhne, a member of the New York Stock Exchange which has a record of 70 years in Wall Street, has failed. A statement declares that the assets are ample to meet obligations "provided that they are administered wisely."

The firm did a large business in travellers' letters of credit. A member estimated that about $500,000 had been thus invested.

The firm's liabilities are stated to total $11,000,000, with assets, in securities, amounting to about the same.

The Siberia Maru of T.K.K. is due at Woosung early this morning and sails for Hongkong in the evening. The tender with incoming passengers will reach the Customs jetty about 9.30 a.m., and the outbound passenger tender is to leave at three o'clock this afternoon.

The Wilson has on board 641 bags of mail as well as full complements of passengers and freight for Shanghai, and is to dock at the China Merchants Central Wharf about 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The liner comes from San Francisco via Honolulu and Japan ports, and will sail for Hongkong and Manila Friday morning.

Taking mail for the States, the President Jackson will leave for Seattle next Friday, and the President Pierce is to sail for San Francisco via Honolulu as well as Kobe and Yokohama on Saturday. Both the President boats are due here from Hongkong on Friday.

Chikungshan Foreigners Want More Guards

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, June 14.—The statement made by the high authorities of Hupeh and Honan that Chikungshan is now well protected by government troops and foreigners need no longer worry about outbreak of banditry in the vicinity proves to be nothing out the usual official bluff about matters. Chikungshan is just as exposed to attack as it was before, and full credence cannot be put with official assurances, according to some Chikungshan foreigners. What the authorities of Hupeh and Honan have sent to protect Chikungshan is just a few yin of Hupeh and Honan troops for patroling the railway line, and these men are not at all anxious to move any nearer to Chikungshan from the respective ends where they are being stationed. At Chikungshan the only soldiers in evidence are a handful of lazy and shabby guards of General Chin Yun-ao, of Chengchow. These troops are stationed in the mountains for the purpose of protecting the bungalow of General Chin's family.

Foreign residents at Chikungshan are now considering steps to be taken to get the authorities properly on the job. It is suggested that a special commander with sufficient well equipped forces at hand should be assigned for that place so that he can afford the required security without fail.

Shanghai College Observes Fifteenth Anniversary

Commencement and the fifteenth anniversary of Shanghai College was celebrated at the school on Friday and Saturday before large audiences of interested friends.

Several other universities and colleges of East China sent representatives, including President Maddox of Hangchow Christian College, Dean Ely of St. John's University, President Lee of Futan University, and Miss Butler of Ginling College. Other prominent guests were Mr. Silsby, Dr. Gamewell, Dr. Eubank, Mr. Joseph Evans, Professor Edward Evans, Mr. Charles Boynton.

President White gave a brief historical resume, in which he referred to the small and rude beginnings of the early days, when the college opened with only four students in the Freshman Class. When the first class of two members graduated some four years later there were thirty-four students in the college, and thirty-eight in the academy. These numbers have grown to a total of over six hundred students in the whole institution.

BEGAN IN 1907

Three professors, two Americans and one Chinese, began the work of instruction in 1907, now there is a staff of sixty-two professors and teachers, one-half of them being Chinese. Yates Hall, the first building, was begun in 1909, just fifteen years ago; now there are nine large buildings, fifteen faculty residences, besides a power house, gas plant, swimming pool, dining halls, and other buildings, the total value of the plant being now over a million dollars.

President White referred to the fact that a certain prominent Chinese gentleman from Peking had told him some time ago that as soon as Shanghai College gets five return students on its faculty he would guarantee an endowment of five hundred thousand dollars. Returned students now on the staff include Professor C. C. Chen, Doctor of Philosophy from Yale, head of the Biology department; Professor L. S. Loh, Doctor of Philosophy of the University of Chicago, Associate Professor of Education; Professor Loh Z. Ying, Master of Arts from the University of Chicago, Principal of the Academy and Associate Professor of Education; Professor C. P. WHEN A PESSIMIST LOSES HIS MIND IT'S A FORTUNATE MAN WHO DOESN'T FIND IT

Shanghai Wins One, Loses Two Games To Japanese Champions

By Westa

Professor Herbert Balshazzar Gallop, who conducts what he advertises as a School of Applied Baseball in this town, has been trying for weeks to pound it into the ossified heads of the young men who attend his classes that there are more ways of humiliating a man than pouring arsenic in his soup.

The professor, speaking not only from his familiarity with the recorded knowledge that reposes in the weighty tomes on his bookshelves, but also out of the experiences of his own hoary years, was inspired by a rational eagerness to prepare the young men who attend his school against the pitfalls of a heartless world—to equip them with an armor, so to speak, that would resist both the thrusts of brutal and the machinations of stealthful antagonists.

And look what happened—all because the young smart Alecks in the professor's class thought, after the manner of college boys the world over, that prexy was a hopeless back number, and that the essence of all wisdom reposed in their own empty craniums.

The foundations of the ensuing tragedy were laid on Sunday, when Hon. Japanese baseballers came to town. Hon. Japanese, being very polite, and also very crafty, no sooner reached the race track than they spread out a nice feast of sukiyaki, which the young men of Professor Gallop's school immediately gobbled.

"Oh, boy!" they chortled, "This is the dish! Bring on the sukiyaki!"

"Better not be too previous," the Professor warned. "Too much strange chow isn't good for the digestion."

Having tasted the real, homeside sukiyaki, however, there was no restraining the Gallopers, who rushed back yesterday for more.

And more is identically what they got. The wily Japanese, who are experts in refined cruelty, stood politely back while they crowded up, with their feet in the trough, gorging themselves.

And last night, sad to relate, there was an assortment of sukiyaki tummy aches in this town that would have baffled the efforts of all the doctors in China. It was terrible.

"It's a dreadful thing to think that this should have happened, after all my warnings," said the Professor. "Still, I think it will be a lesson to the boys."

The score was 1 to 0 on Sunday, with the Japanese acting as hosts.

Yesterday the scores were 4 to 1 and 5 to 2, with the Gallopers acting as door mats.

The game Sunday was a pitching duel between Ono, the star of the Japanese champions, and Taylor, the Shanghai hurling ace, with honors fairly even. Ono allowed but three hits while his teammates were combing eight off the offerings of Taylor. The latter, however, was magnificent in the pinches, wriggling out of desperate situations time after time. Once he turned them back when they had three on with only one down, and on four occasions he set the batter down on strikes with runners on second and third.

The lone Shanghai run was scored in the seventh after two were out. In that frame Bruce was tossed out by Ono and Wall fanned. Scotty, playing first in lieu of the skipper, was safe on an overthrow and scampered to second before the ball could be retrieved. Thereupon Wynn stepped up and slammed a beauty to right center on which Jawn ambled home.

That was enough, events proved, to confine the banzais to the throats of the umpteen hundred Japanese who had squeezed into the park in the hope of seeing the Osaka stars mop up the ground with the locals.

Baseball Notes

Dinny Doyle did the official announcing. If Dinny had stayed in America he would have been the junior Senator from Maine by this time

The battle Sunday was a peach, and Taylor certainly demonstrated that he is the best pitcher Shanghai has had in many years. His coolness under fire was remarkable.

Freddy Bills did remarkable work in all three games. Some of his stops and throws were of big league order. His stop of a crash from Mori's bat in the first inning of yesterday's game was a beauty. And that was but one of many. Nothing got by him in the three games.

Bruce has shown a rare brand of outfield work in this series. Yesterday he pulled one down that was ticketed for the golf club. With Bruce, Taylor, Wilhelmni and Pepper for the rhubarbs the Gallopers have a stone wall outer defense.

Pepper hit safely the first three times up in yesterday's opening battle. Against Mori, however, he wasn't so good with the stick, but was there with the strategy, working the Japanese for two free passes.

The Japanese suffered an epidemic of broken legs in the second game yesterday. Utsumi, in left field, caught an easy fly and immediately dropped with a twisted tendon and had to be carried off the field. A minute later the other Utsumi, playing short, went down after making an easy stop. He recovered later and resumed his position, minus his shoes.

Taylor beaned one of the Japanese Sunday, dropping him like a log. Followed a great argument as to whether the ball hit the player's head or his bat. At any rate it wouldn't have done the locals any harm to have shown a little more concern about it. Herby and Walter Holliday were the only ones who seemed even interested in knowing whether he was hurt or not.

Tomorrow To Be Novice Night At Boxing Stadium

Wednesday night is to be Novice night at the Stadium, and a good card of tryouts is being assembled for the occasion. Chadwick, who is leaving Shanghai on Thursday has consented to box six rounds with Nick Boyle wko is in training for Ding Dong Nicolas of Manila. Ding Dong is coming up on the President McKinley along with six other scrappers of various weights from the Islands, among whom are Young Terry Vargas, who is on his way to New York for a fight with Pancho Villa. Vargas will stop off in Shanghai with the hope of picking up a bout here.

"Cyclone" Santos is also coming and will stay in Shanghai to fulfill several engagements for the Stadium. Altogether about seven bouts will be put on, all in the nature of tryouts and a dollar will buy a seat in any part of the pavilion. The Russian Cadet band will furnish the music. As the Stadium has refused admittance to minors at the regular bouts taking place, they will now be admitted free if accompanied by either parents or guardians. An enjoyable evening is assured for all who may care to attend.

Shanghai Wins One, Loses Two Games

Summary: Struckout by Taylor—11, by Ono—10. Bases on balls—off Taylor, 1. Hit by pitcher—Sugai. Two base hits—Ono. Left on bases, Dai Mai—9, Shanghai—4. Stolen bases—Utsuma. Sacrifice hits—Bruce. Time of game 1 hour, 30 minutes. Umpires—Stovall and O'Brien.

When the teams took the field yesterday for a double header all the stands were filled and there was a four deep fringe of deadheads all around the outfield. Ono, who had gone through a grueling game the day before, was called upon again, with Wynn opposing. The latter started by issuing Utsumi a base on balls. He was sacrificed to second, but got no farther, as Kashimoto and Mori were unable to advance him.

Things went along evenly after that, both sides going out in order until the seventh. In that frame Ono, first up, crashed one over Pepper's head that went into the crowd and landing him on third. Pepper backed up on the ball, instead of running with it, or he might have got it. As it was he barely got his fingers on it. Kusaka was safe on a fielder's choice, but was run down a minute later when he tried to steal. Wall to Bills to Kingman to Thatch, Ono being held on third. Igawa then laid down a perfect bunt that brought the pitcher home with the first tally of the game.

Our gang came right back in their half, thanks to singles by Scotty, who was sent in to bat for Wilhelmni, Thatch and Wynn, and two free passes, one to Kingman, batting for Howland, and the other to Bills. The one to Bills came with three on, thus forcing in a run. That was the only one we got.

The Japanese got three more in their half of the ninth, on three singles and a three base blow. That put it on ice for them as Kingmen's men couldn't do a thing in their half.

After a fifteen minute interval the two teams went at it again, with Scott pitching for us, and Mori, who had caught the first game for the Japanese, working on the mound in this one. Mori proved that as a catcher he is a first class battery, and if in the next game he will stand on the mound and pitch them and then run around back of the batter and catch them his exhibition will be complete. He fanned eight of the Gallopers and held the rest of them so perfectly in check that they never really threatened. We got one run in the third, on singles by Scott and Bills, and another in the ninth on another one base blow by Scotty and a double by Freddy. Outside of those outbreaks young Mr. Mori didn't once take his foot off their necks.

Application Heard In Glue Consignment Case

The history of a consignment of 20 tons of glue was recited in the United States Court yesterday by Mr. Chalaire in an action which the Hung Tai Hong brought against the Asia Banking Corporation and Gaston, Williams and Wigmore.

Mr. Leonard Husar for the plaintiffs made an application for a demurrer and a motion to strike out the amended answer.

Mr. Chalaire asked the Court to overrule the demurrer and the motion to strike. He said that the Asia Bank had held in its own name as pledge the 20 tons of glue. The delivery order was received in July, 1922, and at the time it was handed over to the Bank five tons had been taken out. The glue was packed in bags of 450 lbs. and the delivery order did not specify which of the 20 tons was to be delivered to Gaston, Williams and Wigmore. When the delivery order was handed to the Asia Bank a period of six months had already elapsed, during which time a portion of the glue was sold. The Asia Bank took the glue from the warehouses, and put it in its own godowns, thus exercising its lien over the property. Subsequently was the knowledge of Gaston, Williams and Wigmore the Bank sold the glue and credited the proceeds to Gaston, Williams and Wigmore. The very next day after the sale of the glue by the Bank the plaintiffs presented a delivery order to the wharf and were informed that the goods had been taken by the Asia Bank.

The defence of the Asia Bank was that the title of the 20 tons of glue remained with it, and at the time of the conversion there was no title in the present plaintiffs, and that the plaintiffs could not base an action for conversion against the Bank. The Bank submitted that it had no knowledge at the time of the sale of any assignment to any other party. It was customary for delivery orders to be presented immediately, whereas in the present case for a period of six months no action had been taken.

On the subject of the motion to strike, Mr. Chalaire said that defects in the pleadings could be reached by a demurrer, and not a motion to strike.

Mr. Husar maintained that in the present case both were necessary, if only to clear the atmosphere.

The Judge remarked that if the demurrer were sustained that would clear the atmosphere without the motion to strike.

Mr. Chalaire submitted that there was no title in the plaintiffs and therefore they could not claim to recover. The title had been set up in the defendants. The delivery order which purported to be Gaston, Williams and Wigmore's was the Asia Bank's delivery order, and the goods were stored in the name of the Asia Bank who held the goods as pledgee, and they were to be delivered to the Asia Bank.

The Judge: Who questions the transfer of the delivery order?

Mr. Chalaire: These goods were held in the godowns. There were 20 tons, but this action is for five tons.

The Judge: You claim that the plaintiffs required no title as they did not segregate the bags.

Mr. Chalaire: Without segregation they had no rights, at least, sufficient to maintain this action.

The Judge said he would make an order in due course.

Anglo-Russian Dispute Dawn Of New Relations

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow, June 13.—Speaking at the plenary sitting of the Executive Committee of the Third International, Mr. Zinoviev says with regard to the Anglo-Russian conflict that it was caused not by the weakening of Soviet Russia but on the contrary by her growing power. The conflict means perhaps that a new chapter begins in the relations of capitalistic countries with Russia because they hoped that the new economic policy in Russia would lead to the capitulation of communism before capitalism but realising that they were mistaken they want to return to an openly aggressive policy.

Mr. Zinoviev, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Third International, also points out the success of the Communist Party in carrying out the idea of a united socialist front, especially in France where "les syndicalistes" now go hand in hand with the communists. It is necessary to attract peasants to the movement and to introduce a motto "the Government of workers and peasants" instead of "the Government of workers." Mr. Zinoviev also speaks on the question of the centralisation of the International in connection with a crisis in the Norwegian Communist Party and says that it is the most serious question to be settled at the present plenary sitting of the Third International.

U-BOAT LAUNCHED

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 17.—The new British super-submarine, XI, displaces 3,000 tons submerged, 1,400 tons greater than the largest German submarine.

The XI is reported to be propelled by electricity while submerged and by steam when on the surface. It is understood that the vessel will mount 12-inch guns. The cost, without armament, totalled £280,000.

MARKS RATE

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, June 17. The mark is quoted at Berlin at 120,000 to the $.

The last balance-sheet of the Reichsbank shows an increase in note circulation of 745,000,000,000 marks, bringing the total to 9,309,000,000,000 paper marks.

In the course of the week the gold reserve decreased by 1,000,000 gold marks.

Fire And Floods Sweep Hot Springs, Arkansas

HOT Springs, Arkansas, the noted health resort, is slowly recovering from the recent flood and fire which swept the city. Hot Springs, nestling down in the mountains, is so narrow in the valley it has but one main street, pictured here, down which the floods swept, followed by a fire that did hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of damage. Early reports indicated a big loss of life, but it was later shown no one had perished.

VILLA AND WILDE TO BATTLE FOR BIG TITLE TONIGHT

Exclusive Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS

New York, June 16.—Pancho Villa, the battling Filipino, and Jimmy Wilde, the British holder of the flyweight championship of the world, will fight for the title at the Polo Grounds tonight at 9:30 o'clock.

(That hour will make the fight at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning Shanghai time).

The match will last one hour if the fight goes the limit without either getting a knockout.

In addition to the main bout there will be a four round curtain raiser, three preliminaries of six rounds each, and a semi-final of six rounds. The main event will be 15 rounds.

The tickets have been selling very slowly as the fans have resented the high prices asked although it is expected the match will draw more than the Kilbane-Villa bout before the main bout starts.

Villa at the present betting is the favorite at 8 to 5 but it is thought that Wilde will be the favorite at the ringside betting. Wall Street is betting 2 to 1 that Wilde will not be knocked out.

Both fighters are in splend'd condition and will go into the ring fit in every way. Villa this morning went through a few rounds with his sparring partners, Pat Vincent and Corporal Schwartz, both featherweights.

Exclusive Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS

Manila, June 18.—Pancho Villa will win the flyweight championship of the world when he fights Jimmy Wilde tonight according to a prediction made today by J. A. Adea, famous Filipino sports writer. Pancho will win, he says, because the Englishman cannot stand the punishment resulting from the rain of sledge-hammer blows from the "Manila Hammer."

Tonight, Adea says, the prayers of 11,000,000 Filipinos will go up for Pancho's victory and they will await for the final word that night with anxiety in their hearts.

Adea's statements show to what an extent pugilism has gripped the Filipinos whose ambitions to boast of a world's championship dwindled when Dencio Cabanera died in Australia two years ago following a championship match. Villa's successes have revived their dreams and it is now planned to erect a National Stadium for the training of athletes in all branches of sport but particularly in boxing.

ANTI-JAPANESE FEELING STILL RILES YANGTZSE

Nippon Steamers Without Lighter Service—Students Riot At Changteh

(Independent News Service)

Ichang, Upper Yangtsze, June 18.—The anti-Japanese boycott here is as strong as ever. The students and anti-Japan agitators have evidently done a nice job in tightening the boycott ban on Japanese interests, as no sampan or lighter service is now in evidence for N. K. K. steamers leaving and arriving.

The local Chamber of Commerce here and men of the merchant class, however, are discouraging student participation in the boycott, and are doing all they can to keep the youngsters at their books.

(Independent News Service)

Changteh, Hunan, June 9.—The anti-Japanese feeling in this city seems to be running higher every day among both the student and merchant classes. The students, as usual, are in the lead, but the merchants put up no opposition, and from current talk they seem to favor the movement of the students. Anti-foreign demonstrations have taken place here in the past and quickly dwindled as they have sprung up, but this one has lasted for some time and the agitators seem to be as zealous now as they were when it first started.

The Tai Sheng Chang Company ran a daily launch between here and Changsha and that has been stopped. In their place we now have two or three little launches a week. That company also ran launches between here and Hankow, which have now also been discontinued. The Company is financed and run by Chinese who have taken out papers as Japanese subjects, and who still live in China and have all their interests there but who apparently desire to operate under the Japanese flag.

Last Sunday things became exciting when the Hsiang Kiang Maru arrived on her first trip of the season and was met by a crowd of students who refused to allow the landing of either passengers or cargo. Shouting "Wang Kuah Lo" (a destroyer of the country) the students got into a quarrel with employees of the steamer company who pulled two of the students aside and beat them up. This brought hundreds of additional students down to the jetty and they assumed a threatening attitude until a Japanese was involved who chased one of the students half way through the town with a club. The student was evidently like the soldier who believed in reserving "that he might live to fight another day."

The "Hsiang Kiang" returned to Hankow the next day taking back everything it had brought. One of the students was injured in the fracas and was received into the hospital as a patient.

Four Held In Big Poison Case

(China Press Correspondence)

Hangchow, June 16.—The preliminary hearing of the poisoning case in which the whole student body of the First Normal School of Chekiang was poisoned resulting in a death-toll of twenty-four was concluded at the Hangchow District Court yesterday.

Yu Er-heng, Chien Ah-li, Pi oo-Song and Yu Tsang-fa, the accused were committed to trial by the District Higher Court. The date of the trial has not been announced.

Sahara Desert Was Garden Of Eden, Scientist Declares

London, June 11.—In the past there have been many guesses and speculations as to the location of the Garden of Eden. Professor Sir Arthur Keith, lecturing before the Royal Society, treated a scientific audience to some original ideas of his own on the subject.

He said that in the "far distant past" the Sahara and the vast deserts of Arabia and the area stretching to Mongolia were "blooming."

"That large tract was really the Garden of Eden, man was driven from it not by a flaming sword but by a flaming sun. Every type of man could be found round that Garden of Eden.

"It is possible to go far beyond the days of Abraham and Tubal Cain and his smithy. It should be realised that Egypt and Babylonia were only remnants of a past civilisation. Civilised man, I am convinced, is far older than is at present generally believed."

Suffers Hunger And Cold To Prepare For Ministry

Boston, June 11.—Harold C. Cutbill, the "flying parson," has found out something about how the other half lives. The graduate of Boston University School of Theology who defeated Joie Ray on the track in New York in 1921 went hungry and homeless for two days while he wandered about this city facing the raw winter winds with only a few coins in the pockets of his tattered clothes. Cutbill is at present a post-graduate student at Harvard University.

The experiment, which he said he undertook to fit him for the ministry, was begun after he had fasted for 24 hours. As he slouched through the downtown streets friends passed him by, not recognising him.

"I did not go slumming out of idle curiosity," said Cutbill. "I was sincere in my experiment. I voluntarily suffered hunger, cold and other privations to put myself in the other fellow's place. To those who are ashamed and who need mercy and a sympathetic hand I want to minister."

Cutbill, who for two years acted as assistant pastor of the Tremont Street Methodist Church, on the first night of his wanderings was picked up by two plain clothes detectives as a suspicious character.

Australian Gold Surplus To Go Into Circulation

Sydney, N. S. W., June 11—Gold coinage is likely to be in circulation again in Australia within 12 months, according to financial experts, when exchange will reach parity again. The embargo on the export of gold still is operative, and it is pointed out that Australia could not allow free shipment of her gold if Great Britain did not do same.

It is believed here that the agreement for funding the British debt to the United States will hasten the resumption of gold payments in the United Kingdom, and example is set in England, it will be followed immediately in Australia.

It is understood that as soon as the Gold production has declined heavily in Australia, but the gold reserve against paper circulation stands among the highest in the world. The latest note issue returns show that the value of notes in circulation is £52,651,000, with £24,426,000 in gold, or 46.4 per cent, held against it.

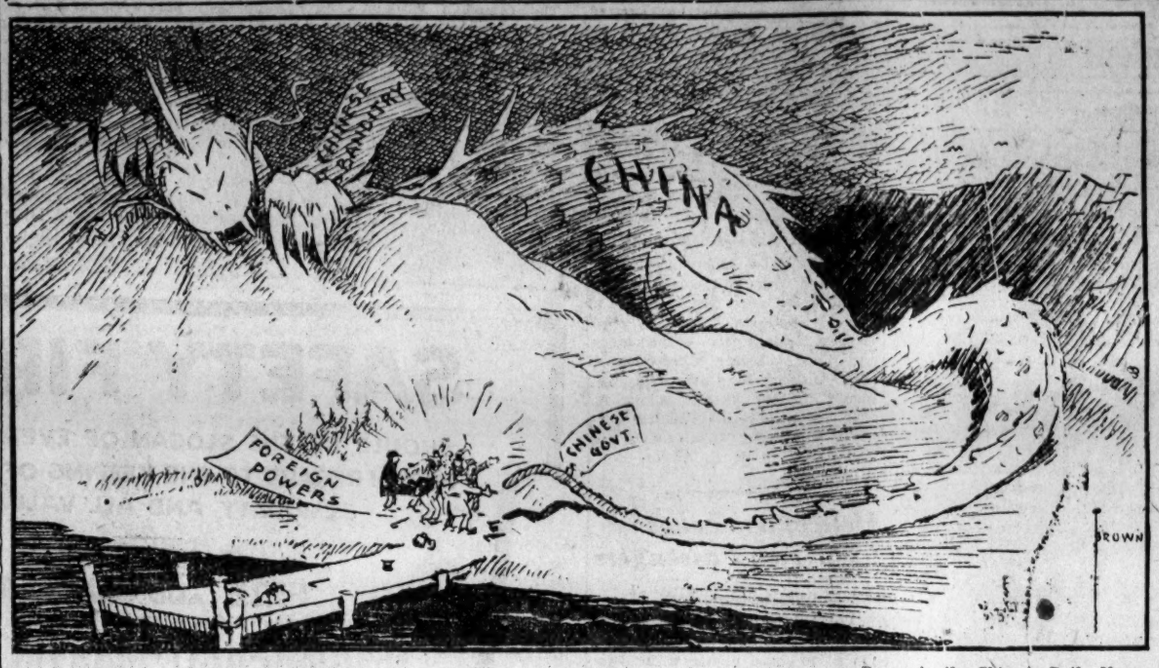
An American View Of The Situation In China



—Brown in the Chicago Daily News

A Little Journey Around The Clock And Map

BY HERBERT KAUFMAN

The Days of Romance may be typified by a pock-marked troubadour with spotted jerkin, rheumy eyes and snaggled teeth.

Yesterday's elegance was veneered pinchbeck. Literature proves an indulgent chronicler. The fair ladies of Boccaccio's tales and Villon's ballads had neither bathrooms nor dentists.

Both medieval poets and archers drew long bows.

Yesterday was a supreme palace builder, but overlooked sanitary conveniences.

Helen of Troy and Queen Guinevere were served by the bravest blades of legend—but not with forks.

Homer left meticulous annals, but mentions nothing of table manners. There were none when Menelaus dipped his fingers into the stew pot and hacked off gobbets with an unwiped dagger.

Richard of the Lion Heart never smoked, but his chimneys always did.

Diane de Poitiers, glass of fashion at ninety, had no acquaintance with manicures or silk stockings, and Madame de Pompadour suffered from chilblains and flea bites.

The richest man in the Middle Ages was unaware of matches or home decencies. All his wealth couldn't purchase a daily newspaper or procure relief for an abscessed molar.

Noble households were filled with lackeys whose united services accomplished less than a Harlem flat dweller manages to secure from a telephone, a few electric buttons and a postage stamp.

Operations were performed by grimy-handed butchers with unsterilised instruments. If an arm or a leg subsequently rotted, the patient was bound to his bed and the offending member chopped and sawed without anaesthetics, then seared with pitch, boiling oil or hot irons.

Erysipelas, smallpox, black death and typhoid roved at will from purlieu to throne room.

His Majesty's table groaned with dishes and buzzed with flies.

Czars snuffled through the Winter before great hearths, and roasted and froze on alternate sides. Glass windows weren't one of the earlier notions.

Beaux and belles travelled in cramped sedan chairs. Georgian journeys were made in springless, rattle-trap coaches, and experiences at sea transcend permissible description.

The best joint of beef in the realm was a fresh, reeking, leathery cut, cooked immediately after slaughter. Refrigeration hadn't occurred to ancestral minds. Greens were only procurable in season.

Queen Anne's feasts were unbalanced, gouty rations. Canned stuff began with Napoleon's regime.

Such were the good old days.

Contrast the luxuries of ancients and Elizabethans with present suburban conveniences, and thank Heaven you weren't born before. Incandescents, plumbing, chloroform, anodynes, serums, railways, plague checks, central heating, gas stoves were utterly beyond the purses and powers of Croesus, Lorenzo the Magnificent and Louis the Grand—now every laborer has them at his income's call.

Times aren't so picturesque, but they're incalculably more comfortable and secure.

Discontent, measuring the distance between now and millenium, finds a myriad of grievances against social systems, but comparison of periods finds this by far the supremely enlightened and generous hour of civilisation.

The past was rough and crude and cruel—pest-swept and vice-ridden—heroic and heinous.

History remembers how a Spartan lad's education began with training in theft, and recalls that Athens at the height of her culture honored wantons above wives.

Time looks back and beholds the daughters of Tyre parading their charms along its sea walls to lure passing merchant triremes to their fathers' trading booths.

Plastic surgery isn't new. Compracchicos, as child buyers were called, invented it. They purchased babies from their own parents and potted them in jugs so that their bodies might grow into the shape of the container. Thus were the good folk of yon furnished with amusement.

Showmen exhibited reconstructed freaks, displayed monstrosities with slit mouths and distorted faces, and synthetic midgets minus nose and cheek-bones. Thus merry monarchs procured dwarfs. Mercy has been a long time on the way.

French aristocrats, according to rank, were once permitted to slay given numbers of peasants each year and warm hunt-chilled feet in the cozy blood.

A Russian boyar within a century might kill as many serfs as he pleased.

Morality and justice, making a round of the clock and map, discover that man has never been so reverent of right, and so respectful of privilege.

The Golden Ages were thinly plated dross.

THE CHINA GENERAL OMNIBUS CO., LTD.

The above named Company is issuing a Prospectus inviting subscriptions for 47,500 ordinary shares of Tls. 10 each payable as to Tls. 5 on Application and as to Tls. 5 on Allotment. The Prospectus states, among other things, as follows:

"The object for which this Company is being formed is to establish and operate a service of Motor Omnibusses in Shanghai and the surrounding district for the purpose of providing the public with additional and comfortable means of transport. The Council have intimated to the Promoters that in the interests of the Ratepayers they view the proposed inauguration and operation of Motor Omnibusses with favor, as being a probable means of relieving the present congestion of traffic in the main streets of the Settlement, and that they are prepared to give every facility to the Company provided the Company continues to use very means in its power to give efficient service and comfortable transport to the public of Shanghai. The Council have sanctioned the operation of Motor Busses over ten routes but should it be found advisable in the interests of the public to vary such routes or to extend them, the assent of the Council is assured."

The Company proposes at the outset to purchase a fleet of 30 Motor Omnibusses, of the best and most modern type procurable. The Company's technical representative will at once visit England and America with this object and he will at the same time engage the services of an expert Traffic Superintendent and a Maintenance Superintendent so that the requirement of the Public may be served by officials of adequate and long experience in order to ensure that the operation of the proposed Service shall be as perfect as skilled experience can achieve.

"It is the Company's intention to provide the public with rapid, smooth, regular and comfortable transport at a moderate cost, and it will be the Company's aim to prevent overcrowding and to provide every passenger with a seat.

"The maximum fare permitted by the Council is ten cents per mile for 1st Class accommodation and five cents per mile for 2nd Class accommodation.

"The average length of one Route or single trip is 2.4 miles. The maximum average earnings permitted by the Council tariff are $4.90 per bus per trip. The Company anticipates that no first class fare on any route now authorised will exceed 20 cents or second class fare 10 cents. On this basis if running full time the average earning per Bus per trip will be $4.10.

"Very carefully considered estimates have been drawn up wherein provision has been made for the Busses to operate 12 hours per day carrying only 50 percent of the maximum seating accommodation; the maximum first class fare has been based on a charge of 5 cents per mile and the maximum second class fare on a charge of five cents per trip, the total average earning capacity of each Bus being taken at $1.18 per trip.

"The busy or rush periods when the Busses will be full have, for the purpose of this calculation, been entirely ignored.

"On a Capital of Tls. 500,000 the amount of the proposed first issue covering the purchase and operation of a fleet of 30 Motor Busses of the most modern design operating on four routes only, and after allowing for all running expenses, and for half the fixed or overhead charges, which have been estimated to cover 10 Routes the investment shows a profit of 1 1½ per cent per annum.

"Negotiations are in progress with the Council for permission to operate Motor Busses on Special Routes for Special Purposes and it is hoped in time to be able to serve the public in the evening by providing special Busses running from Residential Districts to the Theaters, Cinemas, etc.

"With the rapid development of the outlying districts of Shanghai the possibilities of the Company's future activities are almost unlimited. The Promoters are convinced that the Shanghai public will readily welcome the inauguration of this new means of transportation and it will be the Company's constant aim to cater for public requirements and to furnish such good service that demands for extensions of the service will be made within a very short period."

Copies of the full Prospectus and form of Application can be obtained at the office of Company, 6 Kiukiang Road or from the Company's Solicitors, White-Cooper, Master and Harris, 1 Museum Road or from Messrs. Benjamin & Pott, Brokers, 11 Jinkee Road.

This notice is not to be regarded as an invitation to the public to subscribe for shares and application will only be received on the footing of the full Prospectus and in the form issued therewith.

U. S. Trade In Far East Reveals Substantial Gains

Mr. F. R. Eldridge (Chief Far Eastern Division) of the Bureau of Commerce, reports that general expansion of the foreign trade of the United States in the Far East during 1922, in the face of strong competition and notwithstanding a lack of stability in some markets, emphasises the importance of this part of the world, both in absorbing American surpluses and in furnishing the increasing supplies of raw and semi-tropical products which American industry requires.

Cross throughout China were the largest for some years. The United States has been taking an increasingly larger share of China's silk, while England, the United States, and Russia have been active purchasers of China's teas during the past year for the first time since 1914. Tea and silk (two important articles of China trade) have had an exceedingly profitable year for Chinese interests. Exchange has been steadier over a considerable period of time, which has given trade a more stable character and largely removed the speculative factor, particularly from foreign trade. Prices have been firm for some time, with a slightly upward tendency, indicating the passing of the depression low point and imparting a more healthy, active tone to the market. Labour troubles are at a minimum. Stocks of goods are generally low in all lines, especially in the interior, where brigandage, troop movements, and transportation difficulties kept trade in an almost complete stage of stagnation during 1922.

JAPANESE CRASH AVERTED

Japan closed 1922 in a much more hopeful position than was apparent earlier in the year. Notwithstanding an unhealthy condition manifested several times during the year in threatened financial crises, the Japanese Government succeeded in averting a crash through the employment of varios expedients. The year-end settlements were completed without apparent strain, and late December found the money market easier with discount rates relatively low and money plentiful. Nevertheless, many of the unfavourable effect of over-expansion of industry and over-extension of credit during the war and the boom period afterwards still remain a factor in the Japanese situation by reason of the continued effort to gradually absorb losses through maintenance of prices instead or writing them off, as has been done in some other countries.

CONDITIONS IN THE PHILIPPINES

The total 1922 trade of the United States with the territory comprising southeastern Asia (Philippine Islands, Dutch East Indies, Straits Settlements, Siam, and French Indo-China) showed but little advancement over 1921. Exports to the United States increased from approximately $141,000,000 in 1921 to $184,000,000 in 1922, but this advance of $43,000,000 was offset by a decline from $89,000,000 in 1921 to $59,000,000 in 1922 in imports from the United States. Considering, however, the unprecedented trade of this region in the boom year 1920, resulting from the accelerated demand for its raw products, of which the United States bought $474,000,000 worth, while at the same time selling to this market $182,000,000 worth of American products, these figures only bear out the gradual readjustment which is taking place. Our imports from most of this territory are considerably in excess of our exports to these countries, which should be interpreted as an encouraging factor in the building and maintaining markets in these countries, whose economic prosperity is wholly dependent upon the sale of their raw products. Trade with the Philippines is the largest in the group. Exports in 1922 amounted to $43,298,142, against $46,516,049 in 1921, and imports are estimated at approximately $60,700,000, against $52,161,812 in the previous year. The increased demand for Philippine products during the last months of 1922 has resulted in an increased buying power for the population, so that the present year should inaugurate a period of better economic conditions.

TRADE WITH THE STRAITS

American exports to the Straits Settlements in 1922, totalling $5,623,206, showed a decrease from the $7,458,302 of 1921. Imports, however, registered an increase from $56,707,261 in 1921 to $89,500,000 in 1922, largely due to renewed buying of rubber at somewhat better prices. European countries are regaining pre-war markets in the Dutch East Indies, and this is reflected in the decrease of American exports to this colony from $32,340,408 in 1921 to $8,096,203 in 1922. Our imports from the islants remained about the same, at approximately $33,500,000 in 1922, against $32,141,773 in 1921. The trade of the United States with Siam and French Indo-China amounted in 1922 to somewhat over $1,000,000 with each country, of which 80 percent in each case represented imports from the United States. The criterion of conditions in these countries is rice, of which the exportable surplus for the year was good and the prices fair.

Episcopalians To Meet In September

Chicago, June 13.—Arrangements are already in full swing for the reception here during September of the largest gathering of laymen of the Episcopal church to be held this year, when the fortieth anniversary of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew is celebrated.

Not only will every Episcopal parish in the United States be represented by men and boys, but almost every parish of this denomination in England, Scotland, Ireland, Australia, Canada, New Zealand and the West Indies also will send delegates and members. The gathering is known as the International Convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

The organisation of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew was inspired by the late James L. Houghteling of this city in 1883 and from a very meagre beginning it has spread to be one of the largest organisations for men and boys in religious work in the world.

"Since its birth it has been and always will be the heart of a movement to spiritually vitalise the man and boy power of the church," said Courtenay Barber, of this city, chairman of the convention committee. The national body has held 37 conferences, none of which is restricted to members of the Brotherhood, but to all church men and boys.

A man entered a crowded railway carriage, and placed a heavy box, almost a small trunk, on the parcels' rack.

A nervous passenger was sitting beneath, and after looking at the bulky package, and fearing it would fall on him, said:

"I say, do you think it's quite safe?"

"Oh, yes," responded the owner cheerfully: "it's locked!"

Suit Brings "Divorce Syndicate" Indictment

Mrs. Sydney J. Hirsch, wife.

THE divorce suit of Mrs. Sydney J. Hirsch, filed a year ago in New York City, has now brought about the indictment of John Berkowitz, charged with operating a "divorce syndicate." She had engaged Berkowitz to shadow her husband. It is charged he employed Mortimer Foss, who said he knew Hirsch, to watch the young husband. Later a raid was said to have been made upon an apartment, in which Foss declared he found Hirsch with a blond woman. Hirsch vigorously denied the charge and proved an alibi. Later Berkowitz was arrested, charged with procuring Foss to make a false charge against Hirsch.

Famous Offender, Long Vanished, Turns Up Again In South Africa

London, June 13.—Information has reached London from Johannesburg of the arrest there of Carl Ludwig von Veltheim. It is said that South Africa wants to get rid of him and that he is to be deported.

Nothing has been heard from von Veltheim since 1918, but none of those who are familiar with his career are surprised that he has turned up again. There has been enough of crime, adventure and romance in his life to provide material for a dozen exciting works of fiction. He is preeminently cut out for an adventurer. Had he lived in an earlier time he might have been a very successful bandit or pirate or revolutionist. He is built on a big scale and is well equipped with brains, audacity and courage, and has not been a bit squeamish about ways and means.

Von Vetheim is six feet your inches in height and a strikingly handsome man. A previous marriage never stopped him from marrying another woman, nor when he was hard up did he hesitate to run very serious financial risks to raise the cash he needed. He was born in Brunswick 66 years ago and started out as a sailor, but he found that life on the ocean was too monotonous to suit his tastes. He abandoned the sea by the simple and summary process of deserting his ship, and took to the land.

Carl Ludwig first came into the limelight of publicity on an international scale by shooting Woolf Joel, a nephew of the famous Barney Barnato, at Johannesburg in 1898. It was after he had called at Joel's office and demanded money of him, which Joel refused. When charged with the murder he secured acquittal on the plea of self defense.

But, "easy money" had now obtained a fatal attraction for Von Veltheim. Some years later he called at Solomon Barnato Joel's office in London and threatened to do for Mr. Joel unless he handed over $80,000. London is the worst place in the world to raise money in that way, and Von Veltheim was sentenced to 20 years penal servitude.

Public opinion generally condemned the sentence as too severe and Von Veltheim was released after serving 15 years and interned as an enemy alien. In 1918 he was repatriated to Germany and from there made his way again to South Africa.

French Wasps To Save Canada's Crop Of Corn

Winnipeg, June 11.—Dominion bug experts will import from the United States this summer a horde of parasitic wasps which they will turn loose in the Canadian corn-belt to destroy and fatten upon their hereditary enemy, the corn-boring worm.

The campaign will be waged along lines drawn by W. R. Walton, superintendent of the insect division of the United States bureau of Entomology, who offered his aid at a recent meeting of grain-growers.

Wherever corn is grown in America there lives the corn-borer, taking his toll of millions of dollars from the value of crops each year. He makes his home within the families, and had a predilection for green husk of the tender plant, and eats his way over the milky ear, completing his work of destruction long before the crop matures.

Until the United States entomologists discovered in France the tiny wasp, there was no known means of destroying the borer without also destroying the corn. This insect does the trick, according to Mr. Walton.

Brought to America to a new hunting ground, it was discivered he liked the climate reared large corn-borers, making his home on the husk of the ear within easy striking distance of his game.

With the aid of this parasite considerable progress has been made toward exterminating the borer from the corn-fields of the United States, Mr. Walton reported. It is now planned to bring several armies of the insect from the government nurseries across the border and liberate them, in midsummer, in Ontario and other provinces of the corn-belt where the borer has been most destructive.

Cotton Famine Threatens Unless Spinners Curtail

(Reuter's Service)

New York, May 18.—One of the remarkable things about the cotton market this week was its comparative disregard of bullish weather and crop news. On several occasions, in face of adverse crop reports pointing to a backward condition of the plant, the market sustained severe declines. The explanation most generally accepted for this lack of response was the undoubted change in economic conditions.

Starting with the boycott of sugar by housewives of the country several weeks ago, the protest against high prices has extended to the building trades and to some extent against cotton goods also, and it was the fear that this "buyers strike" might spread and promote a general slump in business which encouraged bear aggressiveness in face of weather and crop conditions that otherwise might have promoted a good advance.

One cotton house, referring to this phase of the situation, said it appeared to hold potential possibilities capable to some extent of nullifying the various extremely bullish features of the cotton situation temporarily at least. This house added, however, that "Continued heavy takings from the compartively small visible supply must soon make too glaringly evident to be ignored cotton's statistical strength."

TELLS SPINNERS GO SLOW

A leading cotton writer and a close student of factors covering the cotton situation, insisted that it cannot be reiterated too often that the only possible way in which one of the most acute cotton famines ever known can be prevented from occurring before the present season's American crop is ready for market four months hence, is for the spinners of the world to cut down their consumption of cotton to an extent far and away greater than has yet been suggested as in contemplation anywhere.

He finds some reduction by mills in this country, but says the cotton industry abroad is, as a whole, now distinctly expanding its operations, "so that it remains more than doubtful whether any effective reduction in the total quantity of cotton consumed is in process of realisation." A New Orleans house does not believe that the country is bordering on a situation similar to that which developed in 1920.

It believes general business is excellent, credit is abundant and advanced wages are just now going into effect in many industries. Most commission house opinion is still bullish or non-committal. The statistical position, as well as the crop prospects, contain so many bullish possibilities that few houses care openly to advocate operations on the short side, although such would have been profitable for some time past.

VOLUME IS LIGHT

The volume of outside trade was extremely light all the week, indicating that the public is impressed with the demonstrations against all high priced commodities. Nevertheless, it is pointed out by reliable interests, it is just as certain as ever that the carryover of old cotton to the new season will be among the smallest on record in proportion to mill requirements.

That even a ten percent increase in acreage is regarded as too large by some interests in the South, is indicated in the efforts being put forth by he head of the American Cotton Association to have farmers plow up a portion of their cotton crop. He favors a widespread movement to plow up at least one-third of the land now planted in cotton, and to plant food crops in its place.

He is quoted as charging that the cotton market is "absolutely in control and domination of a powerful clique and an organised conspiracy, which are immune from Governmental interference." This clique, he asserts, consists of "certain powerful European interests, New England interests and manipulators in Wall Street." No one here is aware of such a combination; in fact, as has already been said, commission house opinion has remained staunchly on the bull side throughout the recent decline, anticipating ultimately much higher prices.

LABOR QUESTION UP

Every few days finds the labor question looming up in Southern despatches, especially the northward migration of the negro. This week it is Memphis which sends out word that such migration, from the Central Valley States, appears to be continuing at an unprecedented rate for this time of year. Labor agents, it is said, are offering to pay their railroad fare to Northern destinations. Planting interests in some cases say that the present shortage of labor, especially the floating supply of it, is a far more serious obstacle to cotton raising this year than the boll weevil promises to be.

As representatives of the American Cotton Growers Exchange, a Southern distributing agency, an Atlanta man will go to Europe shortly to arrange for the direct sale this fall of a large amount of cotton. This association hopes to market this fall one and perhaps two million bales.

Crop conditions during the week have suffered more or less, from unseasonably low temperatures, preventing germination, and from excessive rains. Most advices, including the weekly Government report, have laid stress on the lateness of the crop, and the fact that the plant is reported as small and, in many sections, sickly.

Boycott Alarms Tokio Merchants

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, June 17.—The Sino-Japanese Business Association has addressed an inquiry to the Japanese Chambers of Commerce Associations throughout China to ascertain the extent of the boycott movement.

The Tokio Chamber of Commerce is enquiring similarly of the domestic concerns trading with China.

Offer For Pacific Ships Is Refused

Washington, June 7.—The United States Shipping Board has indicated that bids received for the West Coast-Orient routes may be all dropped because of the failure of the negotiators to meet the minimum requirements of the boards.

It is said a conference is still open between representatives of the Dollar and Pacific mail lines, but no hope is held for supplemetary bids which will result in an agreement. In case the routes are not disposed of they will be included in those for which separate operating corporations will be formed under supervision of the Emergency Fleet corporation.

Turkey's Dry Law Aimed At Christians

(Reuter's Service)

June 16.—The enforcement of the Turkish prohibition law has been postponed till August 1.

(Reuter's Service)

Constantinople, June 15.—The Governor of Constantinople, Adnan Bey, has notified the Allied High Commissioners that the Turkish prohibition law will be enforced from tomorrow.

Special arrangements have been made for Allied troops and also for foreigners until the peace is concluded.

The measure is regarded as a case of cutting off the nose to spite the face in view of the fact that alcohol is forbidden Moslems by the Koran. It is obviously intended to annoy and injure native Christians even at the cost of a considerable slice of revenue.

Germany Plans New Ship Lines

Hamburg, June 13.—Regular shipping service between Germany and the western coasts of Central and South America is provided for in an agreement concluded by all the German lines interested in the traffic.

It is planned to have one ship go through the Panama Canal every ten days by way of Bremen, Rotterdam, and Antwerp to western ports in South America. Every six weeks one ship is to go through the Strait of Magellan to western South American harbors by way of the same intermediate stops in Europe.

In addition to this schedule, it is intended to send one ship through the Panama Canal every month to Pacific ports of Central America.

Sun Not Seeking Terms With Chen

(Reuter Pacific Service)

Canton, June 16.—Dr. Sun Yat-sen denies that he is negotiating peace with General Chen Chiung-ming and declares that he will only accept unconditional surrender, but it is believed that a compromise will be arranged as influential citizens of Hongkong and Canton are begging all concerned to come to terms.

Fighting is still continuing but neither side reports successes.

The rice guilds are suspending importation, as they fear that the continuous war will be detrimental to business.

British Trawlers Ask For Governmental Aid

London, June 13.—"Unless government help comes quickly many of the fishing companies of England will be ruined," is the opinion of the president of a big steam trawler company who is clamoring for protection. He says it no longer pays to run British trawlers because of the competition of German and Danish trawlers.

German fishermen, he says, have received such a hot reception in various British ports that they no longer try to dispose of their North Sea catches in them. They now transfer the fish to Danish trawlers and the Danish trawlers take them to British ports. The whole industry has been losing money, he declares for two years, and unless something is done very soon every British trawler will have to be laid up.

Steel Supplants Flint In Grinding Of Rocks

Chicago, June 11.—Just as iron gave way to steel a decade ago, now flint bows to the superiority of this competitor and steps gracefully out.

Importation of flint pebbles from France and Denmark for use in industries dependent on fine grinding of rock, has practically been abandoned, due to the development of steel balls for this purpose, according to the Structural Materials Research Laboratory of Lewis Institute here. Some years ago there was a heavy demand for the flint stones, the bulk of which was obtained abroad.

These flint pebbles, according to the announcement, were used in the cement industry in the finer grinding operations, where limestone, shaship and clay are reduced ti fine powder. Preliminary crushing is done by a variety of methods, but the pulverizing was the work of the pebbles. Now steel balls are used. Long cylinders, known as ball or tube mills, are half filled with steel balls, and when the raw materials are put in, the cylinder is revolved. The balls climb the side of the cylinder and fall back on the raw material, pounding and rubbing it to piwder. Some of the smaller machines will contain 10 or 11 tons of balls, while the largest ones need 34 to 38 tons. So thorough is the operation of the tube mills that the rick powder produced is finer than flour, and will pass through a sieve finer than silk. Similar machines are used in grinding the glass-hard clinker to finished cement, which must pass an equally fine sieve test.

Although some of the California mills still use flint pebbles, which are found in that state, the majority of the plants use steel balls, from ¾ of an inch to five inches in diameter. Last year well over 35,000,000 tons of raw materials and 20,000,000 tons of clinker were pulverized by the cement industry in machines of this type.

Secretary Mellon To Make Trip To Europe

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, June 16.—Mr. Andrew Mellon, the Secretary of the Treasury, will sail for Europe on June 23 to study economic conditions and confer with statesmen and financiers with the object of influencing the United States policy toward Europe.

Don't Neglect Your SKIN!

Always Apply ZAM-BUK to the Slightest Rash or Soreness

Never neglect even the slightest skin rash, roughness or soreness. Painful disfiguring complaints like Eczema, Tetter, Psoriasis, Ringworm, Abscesses, etc., all start off in a small way. The simplest cut, scratch or burn, is best treated promptly by that perfect herbal healer Zam-Buk.

Zam-Buk Stops Complications

This powerful Zam-Buk is absolutely unrivalled in its soothing, healing and skin-purifying power. It is compounded from herbal oils and extracts of high medicinal virtue. It is Nature's own product and not an artificial substitute ointment made up of pore-clogging fats and harmful minerals.

Because of its natural superfine character and absolute purity, Zam-Buk has a rare affinity for the skin. The tiny pores readily absorb Zam-Buk thus carrying its soothing and purifying influence into tissues far below the surface skin.

Zam-Buk banishes pain, soreness, swelling and inflammation in an astonishing way. It drives the poisonous impurities and germ-disease right out of the skin. It soothes as it purifies, and gives you a skin far clearer and healthier than can be got in any other way.

A Doctor's Experience Dr. A. Patterson Shibley

Dr. A. Patterson Shibley, of Washington, D. C. says:—"For sixteen years I have used Zam-Buk in my practice, and I know of nothing to compare with it for skin troubles, from roughness and irritation to chonic diseases. Zam-Buk has, without doubt, wonderful medicinal properties."

ZAM-BUK is obtainable of chemists and medicine dealers everywhere. Agent Messrs. Wakefield & Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

White Star And Cunard Lines Earn Smaller Profit In 1922

Reports of the White Star and Cunard lines for 1922 show a decrease in earnings due principally to the United States immigration restrictions, but sufficient profits to permit the payment of 12½ percent in dividends respectively. The outlook for freight shipments during the present year was said to be better than last, though little hope was held out for an improvement in passenger traffic.

"As these companies are the leading British lines in the North Atlantic passenger business their reports reflect the condition of trade last year. The White Star is the principal subsidiary of the International Mercantile Marine Company, controlled by American capital.

"The White Star report says: "The accounts show a profit of £1,250,134 1s 11d. which, with interest on investment and transfer fees amounting to £198,764 18s.7d. makes a total of £1,448,889 6d. After deducting debenture and general interest and directors' fees and writing off depreciation there remains a balance of £587,085 17s. 1d. To this must be added the balance of £100,445 11s. 4d. brought forward from 1921, making a total to the credit of profit and loss account of £687,531 2s. 5d. Dividends amounting to £625,000, equivalent to 12½ percent on the capital of the company, have been paid, leaving a balance to be carried forward of £62,531 2s. 5d.

"In accordance with the provisions of the trust deed, the balance of the first series of debentures outstanding on June 30, 1922, was paid off, and there have also been redeemed by purchase during the year debentures of the second series to the value of £51,500, making a total amount redeemed to December 31, 1922, of £1,301,500.

"As anticipated in last year's report, the company has suffered a considerable diminution in its earnings owing to the restrictions placed on immigration by the United States government, which has resulted in a remarkable shrinkage in the third-class west-bound carryings during the year.

"The Majestic sailed on her first voyage to New York from Southampton on May 10, 1922. She speedily became a favorite with the traveling public and has been exceptionally well supported by all classes of passengers.

"Your directors propose to have the Homeric converted to an oil burner, and she will proceed in the autumn to the Belfast yard of Messrs. Harland and Wolff, Ltd., to have the necessary work carried out. Upon completion of this work the Southampton-New York mail service will be entirely operated by oil-burning vessels.

"The launch of the Doric took place on August 8, 1922. The vessel is now nearing completion and will sail on her first voyage to Montreal from Liverpool on June 8, 1923. The several services of the company have been carried on with efficiency and the steamers maintained in excellent condition. The freight situation has shown some improvement on the previous year and the outlook is less depressing. The Cretic has been disposed of advantageously."

The Cunard report says:

"After providing for depreciation of ships and other properties and plant, income tax, corporation profits tax, debenture interest and proportion of discount on debenture stock, there is a profit for the year of £394,587 and £199,890 was brought in making £594,477. Dividends, less tax, on the preference stocks absorbed £135,000 and the directors now recommend the payment of a dividend on the ordinary shares issued, including the government share of 7½ percent per annum, less tax, payable April 30, absorbing £334,215, leaving a balance to be carried forward of £125,261.

"There has been paid during the year £130,000 to the sinking fund for the redemption of stock established under the government agreement. The services of the company have been satisfactorily maintained during the year, although conducted at certain disadvantages. A fair share of the Atlantic passenger traffic was obtained, but the third class movement continued to be limited, owing to the operation of the United States law restricting immigration. The volume of freight carried shows a considerable increase over 1921, but the carrying rates, especially homeward from America, have fallen to a low level, owing to increased competition. The following vessels have been delivered by the builders for the company's Atlantic trade since the date of the last report: Lcaonia, Andania, Antonia, Tyrrhenia, Ausonia. The following vessels have also been delivered and placed in commission on the company's Australasian service: Port Campbell, Port Auckland, Port Hunter, Port Hardy. The steamers Pannonia and Royal George have been sold."

The Cunard shows liabilities and assets of £26,793,000 and a profit and less account of £8,313,000. The principal assets were steamers and shipping investments of £19,287,000, general investments of £2,663,000, and cash of £1,593,000.

The White Star shows liabilities and assets of £11,317,000 and a profit and loss account of £1,549,000. The principal assets were steamship investments of £8,220,000, accounts receivable of £1,447,000 and cash of £16,000.

Sweden's Credit Position Floats New State Loan

Stockholm, June 11.—Sweden's national debt per capita is only $67.60, while that of the United States per capita is $226.90. This is one of the interesting bits of statistical information reported by the Swedish General Export Association in connection with the new Swedish state loan which has just been made. A still more significant statement sheds light on Sweden's credit position, which has been established during the last few years.

At the end of 1921 the assets of cash on hand, treasury funds, post and telegraphs, state railways, shares and loan funds, exceeded the national debt by 1,546,400,000 kronor, about $412,000,000, as against a corresponding excess in 1913 of about $241,000,000.

The new Swedish state loan, which has just been absorbed by investors, bears interest at 4½ percent, and was sold at 97. An innovation in placing this loan was that it was offered to the public directly by the treasury department instead of being handled by the banks.

Considerable sums which would otherwise have been expended for commissions were thus saved.

NOTICE

Proposals of the "Reglement Transactionnel" of the Banque Industrielle de Chine

The proposals of the "Reglement Transactionnel" of the Banque Industrielle de Chine have just arrived from France and the various agencies of the Banque Industrielle de Chine will forward them by registered mail to each of the creditors who have filed their claims, together with a voting form

Each creditor must cast his vote by selecting one of the three formulas, stating whether the proposals are accepted, rejected or opposed. After the formula chosen has been duly filled in and signed, either by the creditor or by his proxy, this formula must be enclosed in the special envelope provided and forwarded by the 1st. July 1923 at the latest, to the given address:

Mr. du Pac de Marsoulies,

Barrister—at—Law

"Representative of the Administration Judiciaire" At Shanghai

Upon receipt of the votes of all the creditors in China, Me. du Marsoulies will have them sent to Paris, where all the votes will be centralised: the result of the ballot will be submitted for the approval of the "Tribunal de la Seine."
Creditors not having filed claims and those who do not vote will have to abide by the result of the ballot.

In case of acceptance, the plan of the "Reglement Transactionnel" will be immediately carried out. It is therefore of utmost importance that creditors forward their votes upon receipt.

Below is a summary of the proposals:

1°) FOR CREDITORS IN GENERAL:

The Banque Industrielle de Chine proposes to reimburse, in full, all non-preferential creditors in French francs without interest, within a maximum of 25 years. To represent their claims "Bons de Repartition" in francs will be given them, the conversion of foreign and local monies being undertaken at the average rates prevailing on the 26th July 1921, as mentioned in Article 4.

These Bonds, without interest, will be redeemable in 25 years time by instalments which will be paid according to the disposable resources of the Banque Industrielle de Chine, these resources proceeding from the gradual realisation of the assets of the Banque Industrielle de Chine and from its participation of 95 % of the profits of the Societe de Gerance. These Bonds will be issued and delivered immediately after the homologation of the "Tribunal de la Seine."

2°) FOR CREDITORS IN THE FAR EAST

The creditors in the Far East will have the option of exchanging these Bonds for Bonds issued in Gold Dollars, bearing interest at 5 % from January 1923 and redeemable in 25 years by yearly drawings or by purchase in the open market.

The exchange will be made on a basis of G. $ 1 for Fcs. 12925.— A further letter will be subsequently sent out to this effect.

The interest and amortization of these Bonds in Gold Dollars are guaranteed by the receipts of Chinese Maritime Customs and the Salt Gabelle in China which are collected and managed by an International Administration.

The issue of the Bonds not being possible until after the ballot has taken place, the exchange will require a certain delay, but as soon as they are issued, a market will be opened for these shares in the principal financial centres, in order that the holders may realise same at their convenience. 59785

Woman Sleuth's Plan For 'World Directory Of Crooks'

BY DUDLEY SIDDALL

New York.—Three Danes, one a young woman, have come to New York to tell the National Police Conference how the world can be shrunk into a smaller space for professional crooks. They are here at Police Commissioner Enright's special invitation to demonstrate a newly invented "long distance identification system," and to urge its international adoption.

"The greatest aid to police identification since the Bertillon system," says Mrs. Mary Hamilton, noted New York policewoman and student of finger-printing.

After eight years, Haken Jorgensen, assistant commissioner of the Copenhagen police, has perfected a method of translating the loops and whorls of finger-prints, as well as the facial and physical characteristics, into numerals.

HOW METHOD WORKS

You don't have to be an identification expert to see what that means. Suppose you were convicted of a crime. Your finger-prints and Bertillon measurements would be taken in the regulation way. Then, by the Jorgesen system, the results could be reduced to a series of about 20 numerals. You would be the only person in the world who would exactly match those figures; and, inversely, the figures would be the only ones which would exactly match you.

Your name and numbers could be listed in a crook's directory, copies of which could be kept in every police station on earth. No alias, no change in appearance, no passing of the years, would enable you to conceal your identity from any police department which found it necessary to check your finger-prints and measurements against your numerical rating, or vice versa. A telegram from the interested department would quickly bring your complete criminal record from a central bureau.

TESTS SUCCESSFUL

Miss Ingeborn Charlotte Hellner-Nielsen is the young woman who made the journey across the Atlantic with Commissioner Jorgensen and Military Judge Erick Schaffer. Her work is to classify finger-prints and Bertillon measurements into the "long distance system." Both at the Hotel Pennsylvania where the party is stopping, and at police headquarters Miss Hellner-Nielsen has successfully met every rigorous test that internationally celebrated identification experts could devise. It takes her but a few moments literally "to get a criminal's number."

"This is an auxiliary to the identification systems used by the police in various countries," said she. "It would not replace present methods, but supplement them and enlarge their uses. Every professional criminal in the world could be listed in a book no larger than a dictionary. And instead of making it necessary to mail actual finger-prints or wire long descriptions, a few numerals would tell the whole story."

The Secret Of Modern Dancing

"It has been observed by those who have given thought to the subject," remarked the Philosopher, "that for most effects there is somewhere in existence a cause. So generally does this interesting relationship manifest itself in human affairs that it is difficult to conceive that even the ballroom can be exempt from the connection and its consequence."

The Wise Youth opened his mouth to interrupt, but managed with great self-restraint to close it again wih the interruption unmade.

"I see around me," continued the Philosopher, "a great and notable increase in ballroom dancing. More young people are dancing; more older people are dancing; and they dance more frequently. Here, then, is an effect; and, if there is anything in the assumption which I have just mentioned, am I not justified in seeking a cause which would explain that effect?"

"By all means," agreed the Wise Youth, politely.

"Why, I ask myself, do we dance?" resumed the Philosopher. "And I begin my answer by asserting that we dance either to please ourselves or to please other people. In dancing to please other people our dance may, as with some ancient and many barbaric people, be a devotional exercise; again, it may be an organised display of artistic merit, or it may (as, indeed, it frequently is, not only with man, but with certain birds) be an incident of courtship. On the other hand, in dancing to please ourselves, either we dance to excite the envy or admiration of others or we dance to satisfy, however inadequately our own innate sense of graces and rhythm. Am I not correct?"

The Wise Youth nodded.

"My real question, however," continued the Philosopher, "is not why do we dance, but why do we dance so demonstrably in greater numbers and with greater regularity? On this point the explanations already mentioned throw no light. They refer to constant factors, whereas ours is a novel symptom. I must seek, then, a novel explanation. I find the clue to it in these non-stop dancing competitions. So far as I am aware, no one ever sought to dance the waltz, still less the lancers, for over 24 hours on end. My conclusion is, therefore, that the dances of the modern ballroom are less physical exacting than their predecessors; and this conclusion I have confirmed by personal observation of that stately spectactle a modern ballroom. To put the matter in homely terms, the dances of today 'take less out of you.' The young, therefore, dance them with vastly sustained vigor and persistence, and even the elderly are gratified and encouraged by the discovery that they can support a whole evening's program without fatigue."

A BASIS FOR THE BOOM

Perceiving that the Philosopher had at last declared his own innings, the Wise Youth cleared his throat.

"As an example of applied ratiocination, sir," he began, "I cannot fail to be impressed by your discourse. But, if I may say so without offence, as an instance of barking up the wrong tree it leaves me absolutely overwhelmed. The effect has been correctly described, but its cause can be given in one word, sir—gramophones."

"Gramophones?" inquired the startled Philosopher.

"Yes, sir, gramophones," said the Wise Youth, firmly. "Destory gramophones, and at one blow you destroy the boom in dancing. Remember, sir, that before people dance they must be taught to dance. Now, following your own logical method, before they can be taught to dance they must have music to accompany their lesson. The gramophone provides that music."

"But," objected the Philosopher, "dancing lessons were made before gramophones."

"Precisely—but for that very reason nothing like so many of them. Consider the relative difficulties of supplying the music for the dancing lesson of the old days. You needed a Prince Turveydrop with his fiddle kit under his chin; or more recently you needed a pianist with a developed ability for playing dance music always in the same time and with the same regular rhythm. These arrangements cannot be improvised at a moment's notice; they must be made in advance and with deliberation. Consequently, the dancing lesson of the old days tended to become a dancing class, and as such to be limited to the educational curriculum of the young. Let us say that you, sir, decide that you will dance. Can you conceive yourself becoming part of a dancing class? Certainly not. Even if you had decided to take private lessons your vague beginnings would have been embarrassed by the gaze of the necessary pianist. All that has now been altered. First catch your teacher—and then on with the record and your music is there, fast or slow as you require, but always in perfect time. And you take your medicine with the comforting assurance that your earliest dancing efforts are born to blush unseen—for though a pianist might gaze with contemptuous interest on your confusion, depend upon it your teacher will be much too professionally occupied with your blushes. Finally, when you have corrected those blunders and conquered the preliminaries, the gramophone again supplies unlimited opportunities for the practise that makes perfect—you can dance at 7.30 a.m. in your own home, with a chair for a partner if you choose. The gramophone means, then, unlimited lessons and unlimited practice. Take these away and what remains of your boom in ballromm dancing?

"I perceive," said the Philosopher, "that you would have me reply 'nothing.'"

"I would," said the Wise Youth. "And you would be uncommonly near the mark."

Once Overs

How do you feel when you realise, at times, that your life partner is growing away from you intellectually?

How do you feel, if the reverse be true?

Do you not sense a difference, each becoming less interested in the other?

Just where is this leading and what are you going to do about it?

Is it not worth while for you to try to change conditions?

If you are being left behind, why not take up a course of systematic study or reading to make yourself more companionable to the one with whom you are supposed to spend the rest of your life?

If your helpmate is going backward, why not assist your better half to keep pace with you?

Too many married couples drift and drift because it is too much effort to look into the matter and plan out a definite course in pursuit of happiness together.

You do not want to have it thought of you that you are too lazy to keep up or that you were not willing to help build up.

Make an effort to keep together in sympathy and understanding.

"He's Image Of His Daddy!" Says Bill Hart

"HE'S the very image of his daddy!" exclaimed William S. Hart, famous screen actor, as he first gazed upon his son. True enough, but William S. Hart, Jr., failed to bring about a reconciliation between his father and mother, the latter the beautiful Winifred Westover Hart, who had left her husband's pretentious home in Los Angeles before the birth of the baby.

Ex-Head Of Senate Writes On China-Japan Friendship

Sino-Japanese friendship and co-operation forms the theme of the following article written by Mr. Chang Chi, former president of the Chinese Senate for a special "China-Japan" edition of the Osaka Mainichi:

For the past 20 years, much has been said by intelligent persons both in Japan and China, regarding Sino-Japanese cooperation, Sino-Japanese friendship, and Sino-Japanese coexistence. The truth is that the sentiment of the two peoples has not been friendly during these years. They have tended to regard each other as enemies. Why?

I have meditated on this problem over and have finally arrived at a solution. I shall loudly proclaim my plan, as I think a solution of the problem is an urgent necessity of today. My plan is to establish a standard of international morality for the Orient.

In European countries, the different nations have their international life, as individuals have their individual life. Because of that, a necessity for an interntional law has risen. The international law of to-day is regarded as a special product of European and American civilisation, and as such, the European and American nations are proud of it. In this pride, the Asiatic peoples have no share.

The western nations regard other races as races of inferior civilisation, races which are not properly qualified to be treated in the same way as the western races.

Japan alone has been enabled by her fifty years efforts to stand on the same footing as Great Britain, America, and France. Japan, however, is psychologically still regarded with scorn by the white men. This is due to the differences in races and civilisation. This antipathy cannot be removed by short order.

The urgent necessity for Orientals today is to respect each other. Mengtse, the great sage, said: "After one loses self-respect, he loses the respect by others." If Orintals do not lose their self-respect, they will not be scorned by Europeans and Americans.

In my opinion, the Japanese and Chinese do not respect each other, but, on the contrary, they are scorning each other, as if it were their business to do it.

The Japanese and the Chinese people are even today held by the old custom of seclusion, which they religiously observe. There is no such thing as international life. They do not understand what is meant by a common life of the mankind of the world. That is, indeed, a defect in Oriental civilisation. Cannot the Asiatics get rid of the old customs and habits?

In discussing a Sino-Japanese co-operation, one should not let material gains be the first consideration. Justice should be the first consideration. If material gains were given first consideration, it would be difficult to arrive at a proper settlement of accounts, because the material gains for China may be losses for Japan, and vice versa. In that way, there will be no perfect understanding arrived at between the two nations.

In a word, a practical solution of the problem of Sino-Japanese co-operation is to see that the Oriental races respect each other. As the western nations have their international morality, so the Oriental nations should have their own international morality. As the western nations have their international life, so the Oriental nations should have their own international life, without discrimination between the weak and the strong, and with perfect equality among them.

Japan and China should never worry, if their interests should temporarily conflict. Between the two nations, there is a historical and cultural resemblance. It is of an urgent necessity now to establish Oriental international law, in order to give expression to the Oriental civilisation.

In that way, the aim of Sino-Japanese co-operation, co-existence, can be attained. Otherwise, the Orient will long be caught by the old ideas of feudalism and seclusion, and will be unable to enjoy international life.

Heitse said: "If one tacks interest in a foreign country, that country too will take interest in one's country." I trust that the people of both countries will carefully study the meaning of this teaching carefully.

A Suggested Solution Of China's Principal Problem

CHINA today is confronted by a more serious menace to her sovereignty than has been the case at any time since the Boxer outbreak. An intolerable situation has come into existence and it is due mainly to the incompetence and corruption of Chinese officials. And China is left to face this crisis without leadership of any sort whatever. There are leaders, of course. But where are they? There is no President, no Cabinet, no Parliament. In a vital emergency not even a quorum was present at the meeting of Parliament which was called to accept or reject the resignation of President Li.

And yet by a little display of patriotism on the part of the quarrelling tuchuns, this hopeless condition of chaos could be rectified. There are four powerful cliques or factions. These are the Fengtien, the Anfu, the Kuomingtang and the Chihli. The three first named have formed a working agreement for the overthrow of the last named, which is led by Tsao Kun and Wu Pei-fu and these two leaders are under fire at the moment because of the Lincheng and other bandit raids. They have failed to govern the provinces in which they hold sway. But the others have failed similarly in the past and even in the immediate present, and fighting of one kind or another proceeds everywhere, to the certain demoralisation and destruction of the country.

Between these factions there are no fundamental differences. To put it simply, as we have attempted to do before, rival warlords are contending for power, and while three factions have combined against the one—the Chihli party—which controls Peking, the seat of power, and the province in which it is situated, this one faction is, from a strategical standpoint, almost unassailable. Marshal Tuan, Sun Yat-sen and Chang Tso-lin have in turn been unsuccessful against it.

The three groups now have a working agreement, according to our dispatches. But let us suppose that by close combination they succeeded tomorrow in defeating Tsao Kun and Wu Pei-fu. Would they not at once fall out amongst themselves, quarrelling over the spoils? That is merely to base tomorrow upon yesterday.

What then? If you were a patriotic Chinese and were in a position to do something for your country—what would you do? The answer seems simple enough to us. On all sides you would advocate sacrifices and concessions for the peace and safety of the country. To say that the three factions named are now powerful enough to defeat and eliminate the other faction gets you nowhere as peace and safety would not eventuate. Even if the civil war thus contemplated failed to complete the ruin of this fine country and people, the victorious factions would soon be at war with one another.

The argument thus comes down to this: The thing called for is a working agreement now among the four groups, without further fighting and with concessions on all sides. This we fully believe would bring the foreign financial help and with it the necessary sympathetic co-operation. If the four or five group leaders will get together they can save their country, disband their armies, or with foreign assistance turn them into industrial armies, building roads, bridges, canals, harnessing the rivers and planting new forests to attract and hold the needed annual rainfall. Unless they do get together they will not get and will not be deserving of the foreign help which President Harding has intimated he favors. Will they perceive the wisdom of this still friendly advice, or are we again foolish in offering it to them?

THE FIFTH DAY OF THE FIFTH MONTH

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

June 18 is the fifth day of the fifth month. It is a festival day of the Chinese old custom. The Chinese commemorate this day in memory of the pathetics of Ch'u-Yuan. Ch'u-Yuan was born more than 500 years B. C. in Ts'u, one of the feudal states. During the reign of King Wae, he was a local magistrate. He was a wise and able statesman. The king liked and trusted him very much. Other officials were jealous of him and told the king that Ch'u-Yuan was going to rebel against him. He was degraded to Kiangnan. After the reign of King Hsiang, he was summoned to resume his old post; but he was very angry at the meanness of his colleagues. Thousands of years ago, on this day, he committed suicide by drowning in the Hi-lo River in Hunan Province.

Ch'u-Yuan died thousands of years ago. Why should we commemorate him? Is it for his bravery or righteousness? Is there any benefit to his country from his death? Let us consider first the declaration of his death. He said: "The whole world is dirty, but I am clear. All are intoxicating, but I am sober." If he was really the only one that was clear and sober, he had the responsibility to remedy them. Then why did he despreciate his life? Such foolish man the writer has never seen before. The present China is at the critical juncture! The government is topsy-turvy! The statesmen are all in their dreams! Tigerish neighbors are all around us! No justice but power! If all people were Ch'u-Yuans, then, would there be a stable government in China? Or would there be China in the world? We can hardly find any value to commemorate that dead Ch'u-Yuan!

Since May 9, 1919, several students committed suicide for the hopelessness of their country. Such patriotism is useless, not worth a rap. Below are two stanzas which are selected from the Longfellow's Psalm of Life:

"Life is real, life is earnest,
And the grave is not its goal:
'Dust thou art, to dust returnest,'
Was not spoken of the soul.

"Let us then be up and doing
With a heart for any fate,
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and, to wait."

DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOLS

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir: In the issue of THE CHINA PRESS of the 15th inst. under the caption "Ningpo Notes" on page 12 appeared a write-up saying, "The Ningpo Local 'Y' will start many Daily Vacation Bible Schools in different schools and churches of Ningpo on July first." May I point out the fact that the local "Y" is not the prompter of the Daily Vacation Bible Schools in any capacity aside from kindly loaning the use of their building for meetings of the Committee and, for the use of the normal class which meets for a short time previous to the opening of the schools throughout the city.

The one who sent in the above-mentioned write-up has gotten his information from an unreliable source. The Daily Vacation Bible Schools were conducted from the first by the Ningpo Missionary Association through a committee appointed by it every year. For the sake of continuity the Missionary Association asked that a more permanent committee assume the direction and oversight of the D.V.B.S. this year and following. This was done this year and this committee is under the chairmanship of Rev. F. R. Millican, principal of the Ningpo Union Boys' School. Half of the funds are raised locally and the other half contributed by Dr. Robert Boville of the D.V.B.S. in America.

The above correction is made so that people will know that all groups which happen to meet in the Y.M.C.A. are not necessarily promoted by the "Y." The writer of the above-mentioned write-up is not the official correspondent from Ningpo for the "Press," consequently it is natural that his information may be from unreliable sources. Thanking you for giving space in your "Correspondence Column" to the above and enclosing my card I beg to remain, Yours truly,

Ningpo Correspondent.

"In A Russian School"

The following is a translation of an essay in the competition on 'Good Teachers' held by Pravda, a leading Russian newspaper. The translation was made by the Rosta News Agency, the official Soviet news organisation.

In the little village of Novei Bor on the Volga, in Tver province, there is a school which is generally regarded as a model for the whole province—the Shoporov secondary labor school-commune.

Its foundation and organisation, its whole existence, in fact, are due exclusively to the creative genius and to the self-sacrificing work of the teacher, B. V. Papkov.

Papkov is twenty-nine years of age, and has been through the secondary and higher schools, although he was unable, through lack of means, to finish his university course. He has been through the Red Army and served as county instructor to the Tvor Department for National Education. In 1920, however, Papkov decided to go right down to the bottom and to give himself up to the direct organisation of a labor school.

A NOVEL SCHOOL

He started by selecting as his pupils fifteen defective children from the children's homes, some of whom had been certified as incurable. All the children were of peasant or working class origin. Papkov was given an old country house which was practically in ruins, and he and his pupils started to organise their school. At first teacher and pupils lived practically in the open air. They had little material means, but the energy and love of work of the teacher inspired the pupils. Together they worked out a plan of action, distributed the work among themselves, and in spite of all difficulties, in spite of cold and hunger, proceeded little by little to carry it out. Soon the floors, doors, window frames, and walls of the house were mended. Then followed the making of the necessary furniture, tables, chairs, cupboards, etc., and finally, proper school work was begun.

During the two and a half years that the school has been in existence, teacher and pupils, with practically no outside help, have succeeded in organising, building, and equipping the school, workshops, and laboratories. They have tilled and cultivated the land belonging to the house, and laid out vegetable and flower gardens and orchards. At the same time, as there are no servants, the teacher and pupils do their own housework, cooking, cleaning, milking cows, etc. The school has a library which is kept in order and catalogued by the pupils themselves. They are also slowly building up collections of minerals, insects, and plants, and for pleasure and instruction the school makes excursions up the river Volga in homemade boats. Next year the school is prepared to accept another fifteen pupils.

At first, the attitude of the peasants of the district was hostile, as they had cast longing eyes on the land belonging to the school house; but the unfailing patience of Papkov was won through, and now the peasants look upon the school with pride and come to it constantly for help and advice.

The provincial education department has recognised Papkov's great services, and on March 11 they honored him as a "Hero of Labor" on the educational front. The department is also organising excursions to the Shoporov school this spring and summer.

"Did you say Farmer Jinkies lost that £50 of his in a railway deal?"

"Yes."

"I didn't think he was a financier."

"He isn't. This deal was in a smokin' carriage, going to the races. He met three card-sharpers."

Bill and Bob were comparing notes as to which of them had seen the tallest man.

"I saw a man in the town," said Bill, "who must have been nearly seven feet high, the tallest man I have ever seen."

"That's nothing," replied Bob; "I have a brother twelve feet high."

Bill looked incredulous.

"It's true," said Bob. "I have two half-brothers each measuring six feet."

Contralto—"Only think of it! I was encored three times in my last song."

Soprano (spitefully)—"Yes, the audience recognised that you needed practice."

British Labor And The Ruhr

The British Parliamentary Labor Party sent a delegation to the Ruhr in March to investigate conditions under French military occupation. They have now returned and their report has been accepted by the Party. The delegates had interviews with the French and British Commanders-in-Chief and other French and British officers and officials and with many German employers and trade union leaders.

In the course of their report the British Labor delegates say that General Degoutte is firmly convinced that reparations can be extracted from Germany by means of the occupation of the Ruhr. He looks at a forest of chimneys, and seems to think that they represent milliards in more or less ready cash, whether they smoke or not. He believes that the money France demands can be obtained from the big industrial magnates, and so far his policy has not been directed intentionally against the workers.

He seems prepared, however, to take sterner measures in the near future if, to use his own expression, the "distress" due to the refusal of the German railwaymen to work for the French increases. His intention is to expel railwaymen who will not work as useless mouths in a blockaded area. He draws a distinction betwen public servants like railwaymen and workers in the coal and metal industries; these latter, he says, he will not touch.

EARLY CAPITULATION

The French army has been distributed with great skill throughout the Ruhr; no one would suspect the presence of so large a body of troops as four divisions. The task of the French army is both difficult and delicate, and the marvel is that many more clashes with the population have not already taken place. Several of the regiments come from the neighborhood of the devastated area in France, and the men must be struck by the contrast between a region where there are certainly outward signs of prosperity combined with a good standard of living among the organised workers and the conditions obtaining in many of their own homes.

These young men, some of them mere boys, are living in the midst of a hostile population. Their duties are at once monotonous and nervewrecking. In their leisure moments they have few distractions or amusements, and cannot take a walk alone without running serious risks.

General Degoutte hopes for and expects an early capitulation by the Germans. Of this there were no indications on the population. "To us, as impartial observers," the delegates say, "it seemed that in this wasteful and tragic test of endurance the French soldiers were being exposed to by far the greater strain."

An impartial observer in the Ruhr (continues the report) cannot fail to be struck by the appalling waste both of money and of human effort. The French and German Governments are spending between them enough to go a long way towards settling the reparation question, the first on an army of occupation whose cost in the Ruhr must be at least double what it would be for the same number of troops in France; and to this outlay must be added the wages of the imported workers, of whom there are from 12,000 to 15,000 drawing liga rates.

The German Government, on the other hand, is contributing from one-third to two-thirds of the salaries of unemployed workers, and has incurred considerable expense in connection with the despatch of food supplies to the Ruhr. No doubt these payments are being made by means of the printing press, yet, in spite of inflation of the currency, the mark is being maintained at some... under 100,000 to the pound sterling.

Another striking feature is that the highest French officials, men in positions of great responsibility seem to be working in separate grooves. The soldiers deny all knowledge of or connection with politics or economic questions; yet in the Ruhr generals are in charge, and when the situation there ceases to be mainly political and economic—that is, comes within the competence of military men—it will be desperate.

It is a curious fact that General Degoutte did not once refer to the question of security. His one object appears to be reparations. Both he and General Payot protested their desire to avoid inflicting any avoidable hardship on the working classes. Their quarry is the big industrial magnate whose profits, past, present and future, they propose to take. Unfortunately, profits are more elusive than workers' wages. There seems but little prospect of France's full demands being satisfied in this way.

No doubt many men in Germany dream of revenge. Their number is being swelled by the occupation of the Ruhr, which not only exasperates the German people but also puts a body of French troops in a peculiarly precarious position, where, surrounded by a hostile population, dispersion is inevitable and regular warlike operations are impossible. To German staff officers this state of affairs must be tempting. German militarists can only be held in check by the German people. So far as we could see, both in the Ruhr and Rhineland, the former are still a small minority, and the latter are still master of the situation.

The question of demilitarising a zone on the left bank of the Rhine was discussed on several occasions (with Germans), and was well received, assuming, of course, that it was not annexation in disguise. One very influential German declared that he saw no objection to the presence of a force of international gendarmery on the left bank and covering the bridgeheads. It is only fair to mention, however, that he meant a gendarmery recruited in neutral countries.

BRITISH-GERMAN MARRIAGES

This report would be incomplete without a reference to the British Army of Occupation in the Rhineland. In circumstances of great difficulty and, from a political point of view, of humiliation our people have maintained British prestige at a high level. They have been neither abject in their dealings with the French, nor sentimental in their treatment of the Germans. On all hands we heard praise of the command, the officials, and the rank and file. Some trade union organisers in Cologne volunteered a tribute. One of them summarised the attitude of the working classes by saying: "We give our daughters to them."

Gratifying as all this may be, it is none the less certain that a continuance of the present policy of inaction cannot fail in the end to undermine the position of our representatives. Intelligent German business men are amazed at passive acceptance of a state of affairs which is destroying British trade in this part of Germany. Slowly but surely the impression is growing that Great Britain is a negligible factor. The British zone has been described as a rock of Gibraltar in the Rhineland. It is undoubtedly an outpost where some sort of harmony prevails in the midst of a distracted population, but it is dangerously closely to the powder mine in the Ruhr, and a policy of drift at such a crisis is incompatible with British dignity and British interests.

We found a state of war in the Ruhr. An invading army has occupied this region, whose commander issues orders to the civil population and punishes disobedience of them. Motorcars, locomotives, hotels, and public buildings are requisitioned, leading citizens are seized as hostages, and individuals considered undesirable by the invaders are expelled together with their families. If this is not war it is difficult to say what it is. Such proceedings would be illegal in time of peace.

A WHALE TO CATCH A SPRAT

If a continuance of this state of affairs with bloodshed were possible it would be serious enough, since its effects on world trade, and more especially British trade, are bound to be disastrous. But there are other and even more disquieting possibilities latent in the situation. France is spending millions on the occupation and getting next to nothing out of it. She is using a whale to catch a sprat. It is conceivable that General Degoutte's methods may be criticised as not sufficiently "drastic" to be effective. He may be goaded into taking harsher measures against recalcitrant railwaymen and other workers. One of Krupp's directors compared the army of occupation to a bull in a China shop. But hitherto it has been a fairly quiescent bull. That army becomes more active, if it lays hold on the railways which have not yet been taken over, if it interferes with the rights and liberties of the Westphalian miners, either one or both of two developments may be expected:

(1) Famine in a densely populated area which produce practically no foodstuffs and is entirely dependent for the maintenance of life on a complicated railway system manned by an expert personnel;

(2) Widespread disorder, a desperate struggle between German civilians and French soldiers, the most ghastly form of war.

In spite of a superficial calm beneath the surface, passions are at work which may become uncontrollable by either the French army or the German Government. It is as though Greater London were occupied by a hostile army of 100,000 strong. (The population of the Ruhr is a little over 6,000,000). Such a force can shoot down citizens, destroy and terrorise, but it cannot control. It runs the risk of being inextricably involved in the common ruin and being itself wiped out.

In our judgment the actual situation cannot be dealt with adequately by means of any machinery provided under the Treaty of Versailles. A new instrument is required, international in character, and in the framing of which the German people should take a part. As delay may be fatal, we consider that an appeal should be made at once to the French and German Governments to submit their several proposals in regard to reparations and security to an international tribunal.

Since British interests and honor are more directly involved than those of any other State with the exception of France, Germany, and Belgium, the initiative should be taken by the British Government in the form of a frank and definite statement of British policy and no effort should be spared to keep in constant touch with both sides in order to take advantage of every fresh development which would arrow the gap between their conflicting claims and terminate the present deadlock.

We venture to make this suggestion because, after what we have seen and heard in the Ruhr and Rhineland, we are convinced that it would be well received by the great mass of German workers. On the other hand, we feel that no settlement of this crisis can be expected if the French, the Belgians, and the Germans are left to themselves. In that case, sooner or later, they will fight it out with terrible and incalculable consequences to Europe and the world.

Books And So Forth

BY F. F. VAN DE WATER

All our days we have suffered from the ravages of the Life of the Party. It has been a strange, impersonal agony. Perhaps its roots are fastened deep in jealousy. We are physically and mentally unfitted to be the life of anything. Whatever native gayety we have is permanently derailed when we go to one of these affairs that our wife has convinced us it is our duty to attend.

Our mentality on these rare occasions is completely occupied in figuring out what to do with our hands and feet and in trying to converse politely and coherently with the lady on our right while listening to what some one much more interesting is saying two or three chairs away on our left. It may be consciousness of our own inferiority as a party guest that makes us sit and glower and plan brilliant and particularly heinous torments for the Life of the Party.

He is generally plump. He is always hatefully self-confident. The hostess beams upon him, for, once he is started, the burden of entertainment is taken completely off her shoulders. Sooner or later during the ordeal of the party he achieves the center of the stage. He remains there until the audience starts to go home.

In our youth, being large and strong for our age, we used to wait outside until the Life of the Party came out and, if possible, partially demolish hm. The fact that some other little boy had accomplished social feats that we ourself had never dared attempt seemed to us a sufficient ground for attack. Even in our early days we had some of the qualifications for a critic.

The refining influences of modern civilisation have taught us hypocrisy. Instead of snarling in a foreboding fashion at the Life of the Party now, we shake his hand with a spurious smile and, if our wife has her eye on us, inform him how much we have enjoyed his wit and humor. Not infrequently he twists our ill-meant congratulations into a further jest at our expense.

Yet it is not our occasional personal humiliation at his hands that makes us hate him so. It is his effort to be funny, which is sad, combined with his firm belief that he is screamingly amusing, which is almost unendurable. When a person concedes, even tacitly, that he is funny, we hear the gates of laughter close with an iron and hollow sound.

F. Scott Fitzgerald, in "The Vegetable," seems to take it for granted that he is being tremendously amusing. To us this three-act satire or allegory, or whatever it is supposed to be, seems no more mirth inspiring than the efforts of the person who insists on maiming conversation for the purpose of bringing forth labored puns.

In one or two rigidly circumscribed spots "The Vegetable" seemed to border upon being funny, but these were only insignificant oases in a desert of inanity. It isn't that Mr. Fitzgerald hasn't worked hard. The book shows many evidences of long and patient research. Even the jest about the undertaker who got drunk on embalming fluid is dragged out of the dust of years and presented as a laugh-getter.

"The Vegetable" to us seems neither caustic nor cryptic, but it may be that we have missed its inner significance. We so frequently do. We think it is just silly—not with the gorgeous silliness of Oliver Herford or Lawton Mackall, but with a labored, elaborate striving for effect. Mr. Fitzgerald reminds us of nothing so much as a particularly flagrant Life of the Party, cutting up for the benefit of the rest of the guests who sit about displaying determined smiles or concealing equally persistent yawns. In the case of "The Vegetable" we're not even going to try to hide our yawns.

Of course, ever since he started to write Mr. Fitzgerald has been regarded by most of us critics with all the hearty cordiality displayed toward an aggressive fourteen-year-old infant prodigy freshman during his first week on a college campus. He affronted our sense of the fitness of things. Not only have his books sold tremendously, which was bad enough in the sight of persons fifteen and twenty years his elders, but he has also brought sneers from the Olympians by writing extremely good short stories for "The Saturday Evening Post." It has been difficult for us to forgive him his brilliance. Now that he has written "The Vegetable" it should be easier.

Whimsicality is a rare quality. Books like "The Wind in the Willows" and "Where the Blue Begins," plays like "Peter Pan," are things to be cherished in a world of realities. It is hard to make mature humans behave like kids, even in their thoughts. It requires a lightness of touch and a delicacy of concept past the ability of most of us. In addition, it is work particularly difficult, because it must be done with an appearance of ease. If you begin to grunt and sweat over it; if you reach frantically for whimsicality in sentences such as "Doris sits down with a faint glance at her chair as though suspecting its chastity," you might as well stop right there. Unfortunately, Mr. Ftitzgerald didn't stop. He set out to be whimsical, and succeeded in being terrible.

"This comedy," says the publishers' blurb, "in a slightly different form was refused by three leading metropolitan managers."

There are still folk who insist that Augustus Thomas hasn't done a thing for the American theater.

Now The New Year Really Opens

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

During three or four days preceding this writing the purple robe of Spring has been rapidly spreading over the tree tops where I live, behind the Palisades of the Hudson, in Northern New Jersey. The remaining bitterness in the air, its Labradorian pinch, remindful of Canadian snow expanses, and to iceberg-bearing marine currents, seems unable to dismay the vernal genius whose awakening is supposed to have occurred as the sun crossed the line on Wednesday forenoon, March 21, but who showed no very noticeable signs of being awake for some weeks afterward. But once fairly aroused, this genius is a rapid worker.

In two days—and they were not warm ones—the merest suspicion of a purple mist hanging on the branching twigs of the maples, turned into rows and bunches of conspicuous buds, so beautiful that I like to watch them through an opera-glass. But the lilacs were ahead of them. A lilac bush does not fancy being outstripped in the Spring race, and seldom is, I guess.

Elms, oaks, maples, poplars and ashes are all in the running with the oaks, as far as I can see, keeping to the rear with becoming dignity. The buds of my little Californian mountain ashes are as fuzzy as brown chicks. A proud young magnolia, thirty inches tall, is aiming its terminal (and only) but, which is tipped like a Mousterian lancehead, straight at a star in the zenith.

The birds, of course, confirm the announcement of the trees that a new year of life is beginning. But specially I like the confirmation of the crows, wisest and cunningest of the aerial population. For days they have been appearing, in pairs and in sparse companies, flap-flap-flapping their swift way northward, seemingly disdainful of human neighborhood, passing over the metropolitan district with a wary eye, but no fear; confident in their own superiority and contemptuous of the wingless bipeds who spoil so much for the earth's fair face with smoke, absurd buildings and ridiculous and offensive noise. Sometimes I can perceive by a slight turning of their heads as they fly steadily on, that they are glancing down at the shining ribbon of the Hudson below them—hidden from me by the Palisade wall—and perhaps curing that inhospitable human hive, New York, on the other side of the river

It is a wonder to me how the civilised world ever made up its mind to have the year begin near the Winter solstice instead of the vernal equinox. The latter is the period of the awakening of nature, at least in the northern hemisphere, while the Winter solstice occurs amidst the lifeless snows, December 22. Once people had a better sense of the suitableness of such things. They had it all right in England from the fifteenth century until the middle of the eighteenth, but then they changed the beginning of the year from March 25 to January 1.

In Rome, at the beginning, the year started on March 25. The ancient Romans had more practical wisdom than any other people. The ancient Egyptians began the year with the Summer solstice, but they had a special reason for that. Egypt depends upon the annual inundation of the Nile, and that does not begin in the main Nile valley until near the Summer solstice. That, then, was a very proper time to begin the new year—the time when vegetation started.

By the same reasoning, in climates like ours, where the grass begins to renew itself soon after the sun comes up across the equator, and the buds make their first appearance and the birds take wing for northward flight, the year ought to begin.

It is unlikely now that such a change will ever be made, and in truth, we can get along very well without it; yet this inspiring Spring stirring of all things, accompanied as it is by the awakening of our own slumbering energies, makes one regret that the coincidence should not have been arranged at a time when it was an easy thing to do.

Every Man's Burden

BY HOMER CROY

Don't ever make the mistake of trying to teach your wife to drive. Married life has enough complications as it is

We men had just as well face the facts—a wife doesn't want to learn to drive from her husband. She is not going to give him an inch by admitting that he knows any more than she does. That is diametrically opposed to all her principles. Before a woman marries a man she lets him do all the talking; lets him think that he is the most wonderful man in the world and that there hasn't been a really smart man since Sir Francis Bacon till now, but about the day after the honeymoon she begins to disillusion him. His head begins to go down like a toy balloon with a leak. Once he was so brave, so smart, faced the world so confidently . . . now he has to ask her if he shall wear his rubbers today. She lays out his shirt for him, she tells him to change his underwear—do you think she is going to give up all this by letting him show her how to drive a car? No, indeed.

What a difference when the garage sends a boy to teach her!

He may have a forehead like the blade of a caseknife, but she becomes a lamb in his hands. When he says, "Sow, stop quick," she pushes down till the car rocks. But if you say, "Now, push down quickly," do you think she is going to push? No, indeed. Not her. She has a good laugh.

And she does it her own way. She is not going to be a lamb for him . . . she knows what usually happens to a lamb.

But that is nothing—absolutely nothing—in comparison to letting your wife teach you. If you let her teach you, she will never, the longest day you live believe that you know anything about driving a car. You may come to know all about cars, but will she believe it? Not by a jugful. She will think you're still having trouble telling the pedals apart.

Australia To Reform Phones And Telegraph

Washington.—Under the new Australian Federal Ministry an advisory board is to take charge of reforming the activities of the Postoffice Department, including the telephone and telegraph services. The sum of approximately 9,000,000 pounds ($42,750,000 at $4.75) is to be expended, says Consul-General Sammons, Melbourne, Australia, March 13, 1923, in a report to the Department of Commerce.

The shortage of telephones in Australia at the present time is estimated at 15,000. According to press reports, applications for new telephone installations are being received at the rate of over 2,500 a month, not more than 1,800 of which can be taken care of by the department with its present capacity.

Wedding

DA SILVA—DANENBERG

A very pretty wedding of much local interest took place at St. Joseph's Church Saturday afternoon when the marriage was celebrated of Miss Vera Melita Danenberg, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mario J. Danenberg of a well-known Hongkong family, and Mr. Jose Francisco da Silva, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Constancio J. da Silva, of Macao. The groom's father is a prominent lawyer and editor of "O Liberal," of Macao.

The church was beautifully decorated with arches of bamboo and with white lilies and iris, flowers likewise decorating the altar. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Pere Grech-Cuneo and the bride was given away by her father and was attended also by Mr. Peter Smith, Inspector of Examiners of the Customs. Mr. Alfredo Casanova, Portuguese Consul-General acted as best man. The maid-of-honor was Miss Alice L. Kee, of Melbourne, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Mercia Danenberg, Honoria Klinck and Mae Klinck. Little Miss Esther Petit made a dainty flower girl.

The bride's gown was of silver white, beautifully patterned lace over satin charmeuse, caught and draped with a girdle of orange blossoms and with full court train of lace, bordered with satin charmeuse, lined with georgette and finished with small wreaths of orange blossom. The veil of tulle was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms and the bride carried a shower bouquet of white carnations and roses.

The frocks of the maid-of-honor and bridesmaids were a symphony in pastel shades of blue, pink, yellow and mauve, of mid-Victorian design, with long waists and bouffant skirts, and they wore "Dolly Varden" bonnets and carried bouquets of old fashioned flowers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the toast to the young couple was proposed by Consul-General Casanova. Later the bride and groom left for Hangchow on a honeymoon trip, after which they will be at home at 182 Rue de l'Ouest in the French Concession.

Foremen, examiner; Gladys Hewitt, contestant, having her ribs examined; Mrs. M. G. Veeder, nurse, and Constance Martin, contestant.

SWEDISH FIRM PAYS HIGH FOR RUSSIAN INDUSTRY

Stockholm, June 11.—The first important industrial concession by the Soviet Republic has just been granted to a Swedish ball bearing company. As a precedent and test case this agreement is arousing widespread interest in other European countries looking toward the Russian market.

The concession is for a term of 40 years and enables the Swedish company to carry on its activity partly under control of the Russian government. The Swedish factor in Russia, which had been nationalised by the Soviet, is temporerily returned to the original owners, now the concessionaire, who, however, must pay 200,000 gold rubles for the property and the stocks. The company agrees to spend its own funds in improving the factory so that the capacity by 1925 will be 50,000 ball bearings a year. The concessionaire further agrees to pay the Soviet a certain annual royalty on its gross income.

The Swedish company agrees to cancel all previous claims against the Soviet, to obey the existing Russian law, and to accept Russian government supervision of the manufacturing activity. It is provided that any disputes which may arise shall be settled by an arbitration committee.

At the end of forty years all the company's factories in Russia are to be turned over in full working capacity to the Soviet without remuneration.

Lord Curzon Deplores 'Hawking' British Title

London, June 15.—The hawking of peerages, knighthoods and other titles, which has periodically shocked the British public, is again engaging the attention of of the recommendations of the royal commission on honors. He declared grave uneasiness had been excited by the excessive the government. In the House of Lords recently Marquis Curzon said it is the intention of the government to introduce legislation in order to carry out some number of additions to the peerage in recent years. Much suspicion had been created, he said, by the fact that titles in some cases were conferred upon persons whose claims rested solely upon the basis of large political contribution.

The foreign secretrsy deplored the existence of what he termed "touts," who were engaged in peddling honors to the highest bidders. He referred to this gentry as "a deplorable, discreditable and ignoble phenomena in our public life, which I hope will soon be eradicated."

At the last inquiry into the subject of the indiscriminate award of titles, it was disclosed that as high as $100,000 was given for a baronetcy.

Gown 140 Years Old Worn By A Bride

Chicago, by mail.—A feature of the wedding of Miss Florence Swaine to Clarence Halger was the fact that the bride wore a bridal gown which had adorned her great-grandmother on a similar occasion in England 140 years before. Two sisters who served as bridesmaids wore gowns aged respectively 130 and 120 years, but still in a fine state of preservation.

SIKHS DISMISSED
